

KENNEDY STORY STARTS THURSDAY

On January 20 the United States will inaugurate its new president, John F. Kennedy. Because of the U.S. position as leader of the free world, what he says and does is vitally important to Canadians.

What manner of man is he? What is his background? Beginning Thursday the Times will endeavor to give answers to these questions with a serialized biography of Kennedy.

It is written by a famous U.S. writer, Joe McCarthy, and gives the human as well as the political side of the new president.

U.S.-Backed Laos Gov't Sweeps Vote

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The National Assembly today installed by a unanimous vote of 41 to 0 the American-backed government of Premier Prince Boun Oum.

The crucial vote of confidence came as Boun's forces battled leftists for key points in the strategic, tiny southeast Asian kingdom.

Right-wing pro-American Gen. Phoumi NosaVan, one of two speakers during the hour-long meeting of the assembly, said the Boun government would try to solve the present crisis in the country by its own means as soon as possible.

Phoumi said the government would ask for outside help only if an alleged invasion from Communist North Viet Nam continued. The appeal would be made to the United Nations or "other" organizations. He did not specify whether the "others" might include the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization.

Phoumi said the government wants good relations with all countries, but made it clear Russia, Communist China and North Viet Nam will have to change their attitude toward Laos before good relations can be established with them.

The vote was called in an extraordinary session amid charges that the Soviet Union was aiding the leftist forces in the civil war.

Boun, who has ruled Laos by royal decree since Dec. 12, told parliament Tuesday his regime would fight to the end—with the help of friendly countries if needed—against all forms of aggression, "including subversion."

Meanwhile, rightist army leaders claimed they were mounting an offensive from the strategic central Laotian town of Xieng Khouang against a leftist-held airfield on the nearby Plain of Jars.

The Communist New China news agency, however, denied the rightists were in control of Xieng Khouang. Leftist forces "annihilated" a company of rightist paratroopers landing near the town Sunday, the news agency said.

Leftist Push Reported by Soviet

Soviet news agency Tass said today the pro-Western forces are falling back on their headquarters at Savannakhet before a leftist push.

"Hundreds of rebels (rightists) were killed, wounded or taken prisoner during the battles," the report said. "The government troops seized much booty, including artillery pieces, motor vehicles and even planes."

Independent military observers said the Boun government has failed to produce any evidence backing up its claim of Communist Chinese troops being in action in northern Phongsaly province or of an invasion by 3,000 Communist North Vietnamese army regulars fighting beside the Laotian leftists in Xieng Khouang province.

In Bangkok, Thailand, meanwhile, the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization said proof of a Communist ground force invasion of Laos is needed before the alliance could take action in Laos.

SEATO Secretary-General Pote Sarasin said, however, there is no question that Russian planes based in Communist North Viet Nam have been dropping supplies to the leftists.

Sarasin said SEATO is determined to find a solution to the Laotian problem by peaceful means. But, at the same time, it was ready to fulfill its obligations under the Manila Pact which pledges to defend Laos from aggression.

The alliance's decision to seek a political solution in Laos was seen as a concession

Laos Commission To Be Revived?

LONDON (Reuters)—Agreement by Britain and the United States on the need to seek a political solution to the war in Laos was disclosed Tuesday amid signs the conflict might be referred to an international body.

An authoritative source said the American-backed government in Laos has approved conditionally the reconvening of the truce supervisory commission for Laos, of which Canada is a member.

A spokesman said Britain is seeking clarification of a Laotian reply to a British request for a reconvening of the commission.

The reply from right-wing Premier Prince Boun Oum is reported to set down the terms under which he would agree to a revival of the commission, indefinitely adjourned during the summer of 1958.

The spokesman, however, would only say that the reply "does not turn down a proposal for reconvening the commission."

Boun's terms are reported to include demands of a guarantee that the commission would deal with him, and not with his neutralist predecessor, Prince Souvanna Phouma, now believed to be in exile in Cambodia.

The truce supervisory commission, composed of representatives of India, China, Canada and Poland, was set up by the 1954 Geneva conference that ended the nine-year war in Indo-China.

CANADA AWAITS DETAILS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has received no request from the Laotian government for the resumption of the supervisory truce commission, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today.

But he indicated that Canada has been in touch with various countries who attended the Geneva conference which led to Canada, Poland and India being named to the commission.

Canada's stand has been that the commission should become active again only at the request of the government of Laos.

Meanwhile, informed sources here said Canada is awaiting details of conditions under which the government of Laos would accept the commission.

UN Cuba Debate Disrupted By Shouts of Castro Foes

Canada Stays On Fence

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated today that Canada will not act independently of its NATO allies in any change of relations with the United States over Cuba.

"We're still in the position of all other nations in NATO," he said. "Their relations with Cuba have been the same as ours."

"If changes become necessary in the relationship of our countries," he added, "the changes will be made."

Diefenbaker did not elaborate on the relationship between NATO and the United States toward Cuba.

There was speculation the United States would try to get Canada to alter its attitude toward Cuba. Canada's position has been that it will continue normal diplomatic and trading relations with Castro's regime.

U.S. STANDS FIRM ON NAVAL BASE

'We Won't Quit Guantanamo'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House served notice today that the United States will continue to use the Guantanamo naval base despite the break in diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The White House position was made public in a two-sentence statement read by presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty.

"The termination of our diplomatic and consular relations with Cuba has no effect on the status of our naval station at Guantanamo," his statement said.

"The treaty relations under which we maintain the naval station may not be abrogated without the consent of the United States."

There are 10,000 U.S. sailors, marines, civilian workers and dependents at the big base.

Hagerty reported that President Eisenhower had received continuing reports from the state department and the U.S. embassy in Havana on the Cuban situation since Tuesday night's White House announcement of the break in diplomatic relations.

Other developments in the Cuban situation:

The United States began evacuating its embassy personnel from Havana. The state department also urged the estimated 2,000 to 3,000 private American citizens in Cuba to leave the country and renewed its warning to Americans not to go there.

The senate foreign relations committee scheduled a closed door meeting Friday with secretary of state Christian Herter and other state department officials on Cuban developments. Committee sources expected Democrats to ask why the outgoing Eisenhower administration did not defer a decision on breaking relations until after the Kennedy administration takes office Jan. 20.

Nuclear Explosion Kills 3; Deadly Radiation Feared

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)

A new-style nuclear reactor blew up Tuesday night, killed three men and touched off a high level of deadly radiation in a building at one of the major U.S. atomic testing stations.

The Atomic Energy Commission quickly sealed off the area and said there was no danger to other parts of the station or Idaho Falls, a city of 34,000 persons 40 miles away.

But the building itself was so "radioactively hot" that only one of the three bodies could be recovered in the first nine hours after the blast.

A team of radiological experts, wearing baggy white suits with heavy protective shoes, gloves and masks, shuttled in and out of the building to inspect damage and test the radiation.

FIRST FATAL ACCIDENT

They went in one at a time and could stay only minutes. The AEC said it would send airplanes aloft to check the level and direction of radiation. A southwest wind, however, was blowing at the time and would take any radiation over barren wastelands away from populated areas.

The three victims, identified only as military personnel, were trainees learning to operate the reactor, a prototype of a small nuclear reactor being developed for use by the army in remote areas.

The accident happened at 9:30 p.m. when the three men killed were alone in the building.

At least 60 are on duty there in the daytime.

It was the first fatal accident in the 11 years of operation at the National Reactor Training Station, a major AEC installation.

About 4,500 permanent employees work at the station west of here and the AEC said it planned no changes in their schedules today.

Inside parliament, where the clamor of the demonstrators was audible, Socialist Louis Major challenged the Eyskens government to hold new elections.

Although no loss of life was reported, it was the worst outbreak of violence in Brussels since the strikes started.

An armored car took up a position between the rioters and the parliament building a few hundred yards away. Police manned the barbed wire barricades.

Two platoons of stony-faced Malayan troops of the UN force with bayoneted rifles at the ready surrounded Hammarskjöld's helicopter when it landed at UN headquarters, bringing him from the airport.

Hammarskjöld ignored the demonstrators.

U.S. 'Forced' To Sever Ties

(Times News Services)

UNITED NATIONS—Hecklers in the public gallery disrupted a meeting of the United Nations Security Council today when the Cuban foreign minister charged the United States planned to invade his country.

The outburst in the gallery forced the Security Council to recess for eight minutes while guards restored order by ejecting anti-Castro demonstrators.

A few minutes earlier Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa was pelted by frozen snowballs thrown by pickets near the entrance to the UN Building.

In bringing Cuba's charge of an invasion plot before the Security Council, Roa rejected any attempt to reach an understanding with President Eisenhower's administration, which he called "imperialist and reactionary."

'NOT ALONE'

Without mentioning Russia, Roa warned that the government of Fidel Castro "does not stand alone."

"We shall fight, and not alone," he said.

"If an atomic conflagration results, responsibility will fall squarely on the imperialist government of President Eisenhower."

The United States accused Prime Minister Fidel Castro of deliberately forcing Tuesday night's break in U.S.-Cuban relations by a strategy of harassment. It also rejected as ridiculous and hysterical Cuban charges that a U.S. invasion of Cuba is imminent.

Roa told the 11-nation council he had proof of the alleged invasion plans and said in a letter that "the government and people of Cuba are preparing to repel the invaders."

Roa said Cuba had ordered a reduction in the personnel of the U.S. Embassy because "most of the staff is involved in criminal espionage, subversion and terrorist activities." It was this order that led to the U.S. decision to break relations.

SUBVERSION CHARGED

U.S. Ambassador James Wadsworth accused the Castro regime of carrying on a Soviet-supported subversion throughout the Western Hemisphere.

The demonstration broke out during Roa's speech. UN guards quickly moved in on the demonstrators as they shouted insults at the Cuban foreign minister. After a second outburst of shouting, council president Omar Loutfi of the United Arab Republic ordered a recess.

When the meeting was resumed after 10 minutes, the president warned that the chamber would be cleared if there were further outbreaks.

Eight of the demonstrators were ejected by UN guards. They said they were members of the Cuban Revolutionary Front, a Cuban exile group opposed to Premier Fidel Castro.

They were yelling in Spanish such words as "murderer," "liar" and "Communist."

Wadsworth told the Security Council the United States had worked hard to prevent "the leaders of Cuba from choking off our friendly relations but that is what they seemed determined to do."

"Over nearly two years," Wadsworth said, "they have piled insult upon injury to a point where our diplomacy could not function any more."

'Campaign Of Hate'

HAVANA (UPI)—The Castro-controlled Cuban press and radio launched an all-out hate campaign against the United States today, denouncing the break in relations as a "consummation of Yankee diplomatic aggression."

With the treaty out of the way, Ottawa and B.C. will have to arrive at an understanding on control over the project.

Financing is not being discussed at the current meeting. That is a matter between Premier Bennett and Finance Minister Fleming.

'DIRTY INTRIGUES' SAYS SOVIET

called today on the United Nations Security Council to "condemn the acts of international piracy by the United States against Cuba."

The official Tass statement was issued as the council convened in New York to consider a Havana complaint.

The Soviet statement claimed that "imperialist circles in the United States are clearly making use of the last weeks of the Republican government to implement their dirty intrigues against Cuba."

WHY? OTTAWA- ASKS B.C.

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The federal government will ask an explanation from B.C. of the province's decision to order a comparative investigation of the Columbia and Peace River power developments.

Federal informants said the explanation will be sought during the current B.C.-Ottawa meetings on the Columbia River, scheduled to wind up today.

Ottawa is baffled at Premier Bennett's decision to refer both projects to the B.C. Energy Board for an investigation of the costs, benefits, and a possible tie-in of the two development schemes.

"How can we negotiate in good faith with the U.S. when B.C. apparently still hasn't decided it is in favor of the Columbia?" asked one federal spokesman.

OFF THE HOOK?

B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner has been quoted as saying the B.C. Energy Board study "is probably the most important ever initiated in this province."

Ottawa wants to know why B.C. hasn't made up its mind between the two developments, and, if it has, why it is bothering to call an investigation at this late date. Some believe Premier Bennett is using the investigation to get himself off the hook on the Peace River.

Federal and provincial negotiators after a day and a half have not yet reached the subject of a controlling entity for the Columbia development.

They are still grappling with details of the draft treaty being prepared by the U.S. and Canada. Thursday U.S. negotiators will arrive in Ottawa for what could be the final meeting before President Eisenhower sends the treaty to Congress for ratification, an act he is anxious to perform before the Kennedy administration takes over Jan. 20.

With the treaty out of the way, Ottawa and B.C. will have to arrive at an understanding on control over the project.

Financing is not being discussed at the current meeting. That is a matter between Premier Bennett and Finance Minister Fleming.

DEMONSTRATORS GREET DAG IN LEOPOLDVILLE

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld arrived in The Congo today to be greeted by demonstrators demanding the immediate release of deposed and jailed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Two platoons of stony-faced Malayan troops of the UN force with bayoneted rifles at the ready surrounded Hammarskjöld's helicopter when it landed at UN headquarters, bringing him from the airport.

Hammarskjöld ignored the demonstrators.

WOODSTOCK, Ill. — A weaving, quacking duck, staggering around the south end of Woodstock New Year's morning, was picked up by police—after a hectic chase.

Police said the duck was drunk and put him in jail.

It was the only drunken duck jailed for celebrating New Year's.

Policemen Don Liston and Tom Vernie got a report that a duck was waddling along the icy streets and sidewalks, occasionally flapping his wings. When they arrived on the scene, they detected a noticeable stagger in his stride.

The policemen found that a duck, even if intoxicated, is not easy to catch. With Liston and Vernie in pursuit, the duck scooted along, just a few inches off the ground, sailed over a snow bank (something the policemen couldn't do), then paused until they had almost caught up.

Then he took off again, gamboling across the snow-covered lawns. But he finally cooked his own goose. He ran into a garage and the policemen captured him.

Liston and Vernie suggested the duck was a tame one and probably had been given some egg nog by his owner.

Young Tory 'John A. Mac' Dies at 47

CARDIGAN, P.E.I. (CP) — John A. MacDonald, Progressive Conservative member of the House of Commons for Kings, died suddenly at his home here today. He was 47.

Mr. MacDonald was first elected in the 1957 general election and was re-elected in 1958.

Mr. MacDonald entered politics when he was elected to the Prince Edward Island legislature in a 1945 byelection at 32, making him the youngest member in the House.

A general merchant, produce dealer and potato grower, Mr. MacDonald was the son of Senator John A. MacDonald.

In Washington, the U.S. state department Tuesday put on record the Soviet and North Vietnamese airlift of arms of Communist forces. In a statement it cited 184 observed flights by Soviet transport planes carrying war material to rebel forces.

In addition substantial numbers of North Vietnamese military personnel were said to have been parachuted into the area.

TOT FOUND BESIDE BODY OF MOTHER

NEW YORK (AP) — Little Patricia McKiernan, who survived nearly a week without food or water in a locked room with her dead mother, rallied today but remained on the critical list.

Attendants at a hospital said the three-year-old child still had not spoken except to mumble repeatedly for water.

She was found Monday by a patrolman in an apartment beside the body of her mother, Jennie, 33, a widow.

The mother suffered from a heart condition and a medical examiner said she had died at least five days previously.

A Christmas tree still sparkled with tinsel in the living room when patrolman James Fortuno entered the apartment. Fortuno took Patricia to the hospital.

$3 Million Fire Razes CNE Buildings

TORONTO (CP) — Fire raced through the centre of an east-end business and apartment block early today, forcing about 60 persons into the street.

It was the second three-alarm fire in the city within four hours.

Late Tuesday night an earlier fire destroyed the Manufacturers Building and an adjoining restaurant in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, causing loss estimated by CNE officials at $2,500,000.

The fire in the CNE building apparently started from grease being spilled in the kitchen of Hemstead's Restaurant. Restaurant owner set his loss at $500,000, over and above the CNE's $2,500,000 loss.

'Get It Done In 1961, Mayor's Motto

By JOHN MIKA

Mayor Percy Scurrell indicated Tuesday in his inaugural address that he hoped 1961 would bring more and faster progress than did 1960.

"Apart from the routine work which has been accomplished, the year 1960 has in many ways been frustrating as it has not been possible to bring to fruition some of our important plans," he told council.

"I refer particularly to the parking problem, which is still with us."

In a renewed assault on the parking shortage, the mayor urged council to:

Double the street parking meter rate to five cents per half hour (instead of an hour)

'Parking City's Biggest Problem'

"I mention these things because I consider that this problem is by far the biggest one facing the city at this time," the mayor said.

"If we take positive steps to provide for parking development, I am convinced that the city can expect increasing economic growth."

"I am equally convinced that unless we do take this step, the business life of the city will become strangled in the very near future. Make no mistake about it, if this were to happen the entire city would suffer for a large proportion of the tax load is carried by downtown business."

The mayor noted that "last year's council failed to obtain ratification of the $1,000,000 View Street parking garage and mall plan but he was sure the public had gained "an appreciation of the magnitude" of the parking problem.

In suggesting other public works projects, Mayor Scurrell suggested council undertake:

Redecking of Johnson Street

Development of Finlayson Street into an effective east-west route; completion of the widening of Wilson Street to make it a more usable access route from the west; and widening and paving of Tyee Road to provide a north-south link between Johnson Street and Point Ellice Bridges.

Mayor Scurrell suggested (and subsequently was authorized by council to seek) grants-in-lieu of taxes from the provincial government for its property serviced by the city, for arterial roads and an increase in the provincial share of welfare administration costs.

The city's debt was chopped by $552,000 during 1960, bringing its net debt to $7,515,000.

for planning the city's centennial celebration in 1962 with participation from the surrounding municipalities.

Inter-municipal committee will co-ordinate events and Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee will recommend the program. Where possible, events will be tied in with the Seattle World Fair (Century 21 Exposition), also to be held in 1962.

Estimates have been made that Victoria will be inundated with an additional 500,000 to 600,000 tourists that year as a result of the Seattle fair, Mayor Scurrell said, predicting it would be "a banner year in the history of the city" and surrounding area.

But the city is rapidly running out of lots it has to sell and many of them are so rocky they will be expensive to put into saleable shape.

"During 1960 sale of lands slowed down considerably as there were only 48 parcels sold for a total of $93,585, compared with 166 properties sold for a total price of $282,476 in 1959," the mayor pointed out.

All told, he estimated that the city could make another $600,000 for capital expenditures out of the land it still owns but he emphasized "it will be some years before this objective can be reached."

Appealing for continued planning of traffic improvements, the mayor strongly pressed for extension of Blanshard Street to Douglas as serve as an alternate north-south route to handle increasing traffic generated by population growth and the government ferry service.

"Douglas Street from the Fountain Circle north carries 25,000 vehicles per 24 hours, which is similar in volume to that of Kingsway in Burnaby," he pointed out.

The mayor also said he would like to see extension of modern mercury lighting to a number of streets, enlargement of sewer and water facilities, continuation of the program to cover Bowker Creek, improvement to Topaz, Pemberton and Oaklands Parks and a "pilot" program of planting trees on downtown streets.

City participation in a mooted metropolitan health board covering southern Vancouver Island was given a mild blessing by the mayor.

It could save the city some $20,000 annually but council control over the proposed board's budget should never be relinquished, "as it would be most undesirable to have a 'little empire' grow up over which council would have no control."

Finally, the mayor said arrangements are being made

Fishing Closure

The B.C. recreation department has clamped a fishing closure on the popular "Bore Hole" on the Nanaimo River, it was announced today.

The closure, said Recreation Minister Earle Westwood, is to protect spawning steelhead trout.

He said that until further notice there must be no fishing within triangular boundary signs in the area, which is south of Nanaimo.

LACK OF CLEARANCE GROUNDS HYDROFOIL

Start of hydrofoil service between Bellingham and Victoria, scheduled for today, has been delayed; it was announced in Bellingham today.

D. Murray Mason, operations manager of the Hydrofoil Development and Operating Corp., said the delay was caused by lack of Canadian Customs clearance.

The hydrofoil vessel Flying Fish, which is to be used on the run, has made two visits to Victoria. Local representative for the operating company is Harbor Marine Ltd.

GOV'T CHARGES:

'Prices Fixed On Plastic Bags'

OTTAWA (CP)—A commission, by an exchange of price information and by audits of members' accounts.

The commission said its opinion is that these arrangements "were intended to and did have the effect of restraining competition in the sale of the products covered by the arrangements."

Justice Minister Fulton, who made public the report, said he will consider what further steps ought to be taken.

Schools Closed

COLOMBO (Reuters)—Most of the Ceylon's 700 Roman Catholic schools remained closed Tuesday in a running fight against the government's takeover of state-aided private schools.

The printed bags, made of transparent cellulose film or polyethylene plastic, are used mainly for packaging food products.

FORMULAS "SET PRICES"

The commission found that formulas worked out by the companies to determine costs were the "means for the establishment of selling prices rather than costs, and thus operated to lessen competition in price to the disadvantage of purchasers."

These costing formulas, it said, were supplemented by a code of "standard trade practices."

'NO VOTE' SEWERS PLANNED

Residents in three areas of Saanich this year will be forced to "accept and pay" for installation of individual sewer systems because of serious health hazards.

Reeve George Chatterton told the council's 1961 inaugural meeting that "most serious health hazards exist" in three districts because of inefficient septic tanks.

The areas named are Willow McBrier, between Quadra and Blenkinsop Lake; Glanford Gardens, between Carey Road and Douglas Street, and Cadell-Cassey Drive, west of Mount View High School.

The reeve said residents in the district will not be given a chance to vote on the sewer bylaws.

"We have no other alternative but to take steps to eliminate the hazards," he said.

He said public meetings will be called to explain the situation to residents in the areas. After costs have been estimated, he said council will sit as a board of health and order the installation of sewers as a necessary health measure.

The reeve urged more "rigid control" of septic tanks in new subdivisions where the soil does not pass percolation tests.

He said because soil percolation tests were ignored several years ago, serious sanitation problems are facing the municipality.

The reeve also urged establishment of a light industrial estate of at least 80 acres for light industry and businesses.

He said businesses are pressing for a well-planned industrial zone.

As an example, he cited the application of Dominion Construction Co. to rezone the 20 acres of property at Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway for light industrial use.

The reeve said he will seek council's approval this year to speed up improvements to the Saanich waterworks system.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1961

To Mr. Gaglardi

AS A MAN OF HONOR MR. Gaglardi no doubt will be the first to demand a full investigation of certain extraordinary events in his department of highways.

He has been fined $1,000 for contempt of court, in itself an unprecedented affair requiring much more explanation than it has received in the strictly legal proceedings of the courts.

While the charge of contempt was being adjudicated a contractor, Mr. C. W. Thornton, who was convicted along with Mr. Gaglardi and jailed for a time, testified under oath that he had received a road contract of $757,000 when he had no assets, and had not posted a performance bond.

From all this arises the legal question of Mr. Gaglardi's right to sit as a member of the Legislature after his conviction for contempt. It is a nice point of law, on which no opinion is offered here. As the first law officer of the Crown Mr. Bonner is bound to consider it and, if he is in doubt, to refer it to the courts.

But much more than legal technicalities is involved in these complex matters. What is really happening in the department of highways?

Mr. Gaglardi says he has a full answer to all criticism leveled against him. If so, he should be given every opportunity to make the answer before an impartial tribunal where all relevant evidence can be heard under oath.

He should welcome, and we hope he will insist on, a royal commission preferably, as urged by Mr. Perrault, or, in default of a commission, then as a second best choice, a committee of the Legislature. Mr. Gaglardi should vindicate his high office if he is to retain it.

Promises and Realities

MR. KENNEDY WILL GO INTO office with two sets of commitments to the public. Neither of them is likely to be more than partially carried out.

The party platform, as laid down and approved by the national Democratic convention, set forth certain aims and objects of the party. It can be considered as only a very generalized expression of position, however. It cannot be binding on Mr. Kennedy nor will anyone expect it to be so.

As President he will have few limitations on his power; he will be free to make or break policy as occasion demands, and party decisions reached before he was even nominated cannot be allowed to hamper him. His only curbs in this regard must be Congress and public opinion.

The second set of commitments is a little more personal. They are the promises Mr. Kennedy made in various fields during his election campaign. These policies and courses of action may be more reasonably held up to him as undertakings which he must fulfill. But here again there are many other factors involved.

No party which comes to power after a lengthy rule by a different party, finds itself able immediately to implement policies which diverge markedly from those in force. The country's internal economy and its relations with other countries have settled into certain patterns. Only over a long period of time can marked changes be effected in these patterns, unless the life of the nation is to be seriously disrupted.

A classic example of this was the pledge of the Conservative Party in Britain to denationalize industry if it replaced the Labor Government in office. But once elected, it proved too difficult to implement the election promise except in minor aspects.

Mr. Kennedy will therefore probably go slow on major changes, and seek to establish his authority with a series of unspectacular legislative acts which will not arouse any determined opposition. The smallness of his majority in the voting last November is another factor that should deter him from immediate extremes of policy. The changes will be cautious and gradual.

The rule does not always hold. In the 'thirties Mr. Roosevelt promised, and was able immediately to implement, drastic changes in the United States economy. But those were times of urgent crisis. Today the crises are more of a long-lasting nature — although perhaps more lethal in their basic significance — and must be solved by long-term planning. It is for this that Mr. Kennedy must demand, and be given, as much freedom from commitments as possible.

Air Safety Lagging?

OPEN HEARINGS OF THE Civil Aeronautics Board, starting in New York today, may provide further information on the mid-air crash which claimed a record number of lives over that city last month.

The importance of the hearings, however, will not rest solely on the facts coming to light in them. More significant will be the actions which those facts set in motion to increase air safety.

Several points have already emerged from various studies of the mishap. It seems clear that safety planners have not been able to keep pace with the rapid increase in traffic into and out of some airports or to meet all the challenges presented by new jet aircraft.

Dangers such as those which combined to cause the tragedy last month will probably never be eliminated entirely. Human faults and mechanical failings will prevent perfection. At the same time there appear to be new devices in prospect which could minimize the hazards.

One of them is three-dimensional radar which would give control station observers not only the course an aircraft is flying, but also its altitude.

On a less scientific plane are suggestions now being advanced that traffic be thinned down by provision of more airports and a limit on the number of aircraft using any landing field at a particular time. Thus, it is argued, planes would not be "stacked up" to the degree they are in some air space at this time. Moreover, airports located further apart would provide more room for aircraft circling until they were given permission to land.

The relationship between conditions existing near New York and those in Canada may be a matter for experts only. The ordinary layman is not sufficiently informed. Moreover, traffic in this country is far below that in the United States and the Canadian reputation for safety is particularly high.

Nevertheless, with more planes, bigger planes and faster planes coming into service, it may be taken for granted that this country will follow with close interest safety proposals advanced elsewhere. Even in Canadian skies it is becoming too crowded to permit any laxity in keeping abreast with, or ahead of, safety devices and techniques in other countries.

Fine Traffic Record

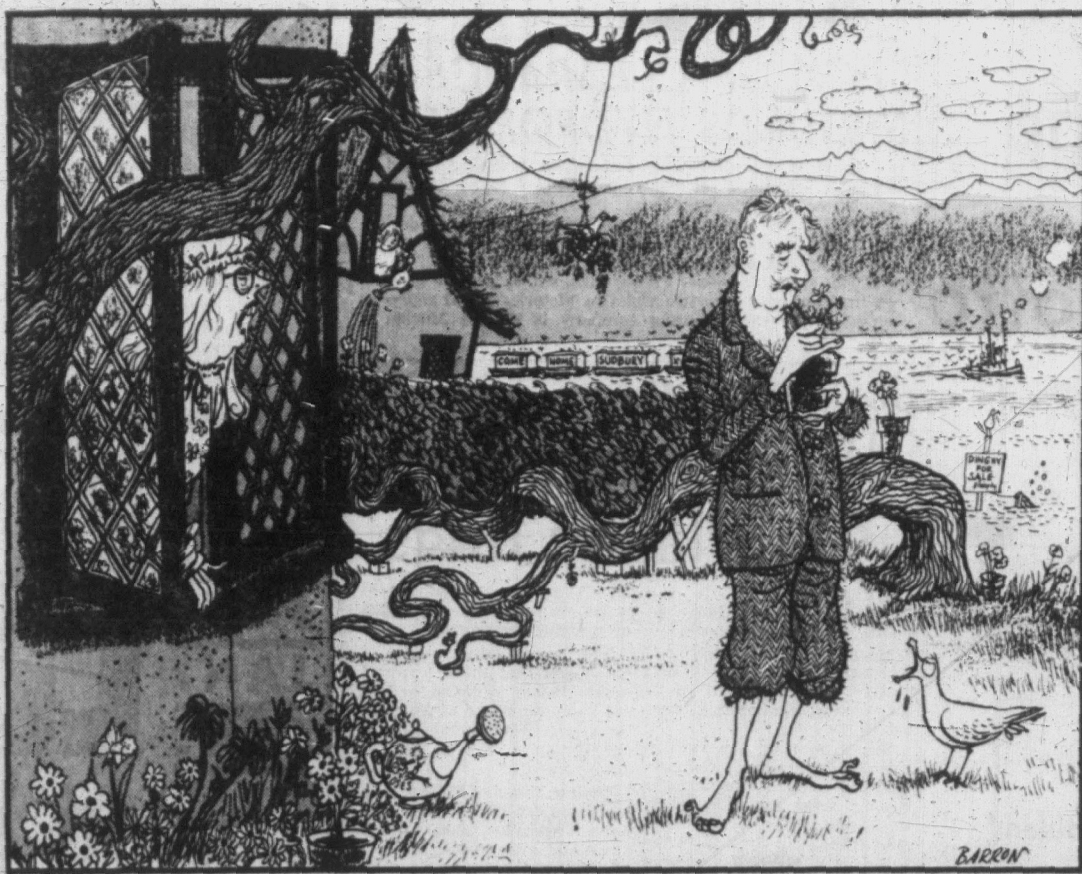

BY GOOD MANAGEMENT AND good luck Greater Victoria escaped not only traffic fatalities but serious injuries in car crashes over the holiday season.

The record is highly satisfactory, not only in comparison with the national total but also because driving conditions were hazardous during intermittent periods of frost, fog and rain.

Throughout Canada the picture was less inspiring. Thirty-three people were killed in car accidents over the three-day New Year weekend, one more than the total forecast by safety officials and well above the 1959-60 figure of 21. During the three-day Christmas period the national highway death toll was 49, three below the estimate.

In this community drivers and pedestrians appear to have proved, by their caution during the last 10 days, that most accidents do not have to happen. When adequate care is taken, the toll drops—a point to be remembered during the rest of the year.

What Will Kennedy's Foreign Policy Be?

THE principles, which will guide the Kennedy Administration in its foreign policy are fourfold. To begin with, the new officials believe that Moscow must be as concerned as Washington with the runaway arms race. The possible spread of atomic weapons among young nations and in dangerous areas of the world must cause concern to the Great Powers. It may even expedite a genuine search for an agreement on disarmament. The Kennedy Administration intends to find out what Russia's intentions in this matter really are.

Secondly, it plans to place the problem of China in a new framework. It believes that no solution of the problem of recognition can reasonably be expected now. China will never yield its claim to Formosa, the United States will remain firm in its pledge to Formosa, there can be no "two-China" policy unless Formosa and China agree to it, and on this rock the attempted solution must founder.

But recognition does not exhaust the problem. The Kennedy Administration expects China to behave in the old, imperialist tradition in the next few years and to seek new conquests in Asia. When China invaded Tibet it was hard to secure the support of Formosa at the United Nations in condemning this act, for the acquisition of Tibet had been a policy, whether Communist or Nationalist.

This revival of Chinese imperial policy, according to Mr. Kennedy's advisers, will be strengthened by the conviction of Peking that it can make better use of the resources of nearby countries than can their backward Governments and medieval economies.

These advisers are comparing China to Nazi Germany in three ways: China is strong, has weak neighbors, and is short of important resources.

In China today there are less than two acres of land for every rural family. There is a shortage of oil, with between 60 and 80 per cent being imported from Russia. The combination of power with economic need is the classic prelude to aggression; and that is why Mr. Kennedy's advisers are thinking ominously about China's next moves and urging him to co-ordinate American policy with the principal allies.

The third principle is that American policy must pay much more attention to the wishes and prejudices of the new members of the United Nations. These countries will soon master the art of debate and negotiation in the world organization. With the passage of years they will send their best men to the United Nations. Not only their votes but their ideas will be important to the United States. This point must be made very clear to them. There must be no attempt to treat them as if they are heretics if they fail in all particulars to conform to the American dogmas on world affairs.

Finally, the United States must apply its policies with a more sensitive awareness that a world opinion is in fact being created for the first time in history. The existence of this world opinion has been the decisive fact in compelling a suspension of tests that contaminated the atmosphere and increased the dangers of strontium 90. It may now exert an equal influence in compelling attention to the economic needs of the underdeveloped nations.

Mr. Kennedy is being advised that it will be unrealistic for him to base American policy on the assumption that the Chinese danger will make Russia's own conduct more moderate and conciliatory.

On the contrary, Russia will wish to build up its own power and broaden its base of Communist authority so that it will be better able to withstand the Chinese challenge ten years from now.

The Railway Crisis Postponed, Not Solved

THE railway crisis has been postponed, by act of Parliament, until May 15. But the fundamental issue which gave rise to the crisis, and which has been in full view since the change of government in June, 1957, remains.

As will be shown, it is rapidly worsening.

There are two aspects to this basic railway problem.

1. This crisis revealed, very clearly, a breakdown in government at Ottawa. The problem caused by railway union wage increases was obvious before the election of 1957, which brought in the Diefenbaker government. It became critical in June, 1957, because the Conservative party, especially Mr. Diefenbaker, was pledged to stop, and did stop, horizontal increases in freight rates.

How could railway wages continue to rise, if the railways were to be forbidden to increase maximum rates — the only category of rates that could be increased without catastrophic loss of traffic to competitors?

As the months and years passed, it became clear that the Diefenbaker government did not know the answer. If the railway unions had waited until the Diefenbaker Government recovered its capacity to govern — to act — today's problem might not be so acute. But they went straight ahead with their drive for higher wages.

The public is concerned about the 14 cents an hour increase which caused the near strike of Dec. 3. The public should remember that this wage award and part of the 17 per cent freight rate increase of Nov. 17, 1958, have still to be absorbed.

More than half of it — 9 per cent — is being paid on an interim basis by government subsidy.

Stacked Up

An application for another 12 per cent horizontal increase, dating from May, 1959, is held up pending a clearing away of the 17 per cent increase of 1958.

Because of government irresolution and inaction, freight rates are in an unprecedented condition of chaos.

The second aspect of the problem arises because of the steady inroads being made by the trucks into railway traffic. Traffic continues to forsake the rails for trucks. And the traffic being lost is the very traffic which bears the rates which have been increased horizontally, on eight occasions since 1946.

Truck competition began in the early 1920s and by 1957 had reached astonishing proportions. In that year the trucks carried $381 millions of traffic.

This aspect of the problem is: how can the railways pay higher wages and still compete with the trucks? This question seems never to have occurred to the railway unions.

No Solution

As the debates on Bill C-45 a few weeks ago showed, the Government has no idea of how this problem may be solved. The Government is relying on the MacPherson royal commission on transportation which is expected to report March 31.

Why did the Conservatives, under Mr. Diefenbaker, condemn horizontal increases, when they had no solution? And having obtained power, with this pledge hanging over them, why did the Conservative government do nothing — for two long years — until the railways came crashing down about their ears?

Even in November, 1958, when the first crisis occurred, why did the Conservative Government take six months to appoint a royal commission to do what the Government, in these circumstances, should have done the moment it took office, in June, 1957?

It is not generally realized that at the present level of freight rates the trucks took so much traffic away from the railways in 1959 that 15,000 railway workers lost their jobs.

As Our Readers See It

Not Socialists

In reference to the strike in Belgium I would like to say that there is no Socialist Party in Belgium. If they were socialists they would not be leading the workers in anything.

The organization masquerading under that label is the Belgium version of the Canadian CCF or British Labor Party. It is this so-called "Socialist" party which is in power, they like other reform parties, would be doing approximately the same as Eyskens is doing. The "villain" would have a different label, that's all.

The real rogue however, is capitalism which can be neither administered nor reformed in the interest of the workers. This system with its class struggle violence in many forms, poverty in the midst of potential plenty and fear of war, will enumber the workers until they institute common ownership of the means of production and distribution, in the interest of all society.

Tithing

Since we can't afford in these days of stress to deprive ourselves of any promised blessings, would it not be well for us to take notice of the prominent churchman's advice to his congregation, (Times, Dec. 27, 1960) and begin paying tithes?

Did not Christ Himself strongly indicate that the giving of the tithe (a tenth part) ought to be included with the other Christian practices? (Matt. 23: 23). And the inspired prophet said: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse . . . and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive." (Malachi 3:10).

AN OBSERVER

Settle Down

As we write January of 1961, we stand on the threshold of another year, which can, or should, be marked by much of the influence, for good or otherwise, of what may be the contribution we make towards its movement, up or down.

Already we have commentators prognosticating more industrial difficulties, due to the number of contracts ending and to be reserved, etc.

What necessity is there nowadays to confound with short term contracts, one or two years, which seem to provide the irritation and opportunity for some to assume that any increase is possible.

What this country needs is to really settle down to work and show what we are capable of.

Missing Those DC3s

I have been reading with considerable interest various articles regarding good old DC-3s and the air traffic out of Pat Bay airport.

I am all for progress but can't for the life of me see why they are taking the DC-3s off the run at this time. Your article in Wednesday's paper states that DC-3s have carried 3,200,000 passengers between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle in 16 years without one single fatality. The planes have had some pretty bumpy weather to fly through and have proven themselves most airworthy and very rugged for such a short hop.

A DC-3 makes the trip to Vancouver in 20 minutes, a Viscount in 15 minutes. Viscounts carry about 40 people so if you are at the end of the line on boarding or landing you won't save much time anyway, so there goes your five minutes. Viscounts are too large and complicated for short runs such as this. So the chance of accident will increase considerably. I would like to suggest that our readers think it over and the people of Victoria get together to demand a good helicopter service which would leave from Victoria and land in Vancouver. A trip of around half an hour.

Using Viscounts is just like putting fancy big Greyhound buses on our city transportation system.

The only reason the fare is going up is to make up for the extra cost of running the larger aircraft. I would much rather see the good old DC-3s plug along for a couple more years until we can come up with a good helicopter service. Remember the CFF with their fancy Princess boats. They lost out to the less comfortable but more efficient government ferries and a much more reasonable price.

What Basis for Hope?

It would seem that Mr. L. J. Pepper has little hope in the prayers of our Queen, and Pope John, and our prime minister, yet he ends his letter with these words: "Let us hope the news of today, and this week will improve." May I ask Mr. Pepper by what power or authority he builds his hope, if it is not on God's love for all mankind?

If we turn our backs on God's love and ignore the good tidings of great joy of the Christmas message, the news is not likely to improve.

Every Sunday evening our churches should be packed with teenagers praising and thanking God for what He has done and will do for us.

Just Loitering Around

WASHINGTON (UPI)—For a couple of years now Robert Frost has been my favorite poet, but it was only a couple of days ago that I got around to reading any of his poems.

The hard and shameful truth is that I don't care much for poetry. Try as I might, I can't seem to keep my mind on it. Whenever I sit down with a volume of verses, I soon find myself reaching for the latest Mickey Spillane.

It is not necessary, however, to appreciate Frost's poetry in order to appreciate Frost. My admiration for the celebrated New England bard began in 1959 when he accepted a position, or rather a title, as a consultant to the Library of Congress.

One day he waggishly confided to a group of newsmen that the consulting trade was a bit slow. He indicated he was having some trouble attending to his duties because he couldn't figure out what his duties were supposed to be.

This tended to confirm a suspicion I had long entertained about government consultants in general, and I joined the cult of Frost admirers on the spot.

Consequently, when the Library of Congress announced recently that it had obtained a collection of letters Frost had written to a friend, Louis Undermeyer, I hastened over to inspect it.

There is no doubt that Frost has a way with words. There also is no doubt that his handwriting is atrocious. I had to skip most of the letters because I couldn't decipher them.

Fortunately, some of them were type-written, and for this Frost apologized. He ended one letter by commenting, "I would be writing this by hand but dictating it builds up my self respect by making me feel like a dictator."

That sentence is a sample of the soft-shoe humor on display throughout the collection. I particularly enjoyed seeing the Christmas cards he sent to Undermeyer. Each contained a poem and some had personal notes scrawled across them.

In one note, Frost observed that he had been favorably mentioned in a book by Undermeyer and said this caused him to "put a few airs on my studied humility in spite of myself." In another note, he told Undermeyer he had undergone a medical examination and had been "pronounced immortal by the doctors."

As for the poems themselves, the one I liked best was entitled "Some Science Fiction." In it, Frost spoke of "not keeping pace with the headlong human race" and of "loitering around at less than the speed of sound."

These lines strengthened my affinity for the unconsulted consultant. Although I have never been "pronounced immortal" by any doctor, I certainly am guilty of "loitering around at less than the speed of sound."

Frost, who, sometimes signed his name as "Robberd Frosted," also wrote that "the ultimate test is how a writer takes himself as betrayed in tone word-font and collateral advertising."

"I don't know much about tone word-fonts, but I sure dig his collateral advertising."

HOME GARDEN

It's the Middle Season Here

The beginning of a brand new year for most enterprises—yet for gardeners in and around Victoria it might be termed the middle season.

We planted bulbs in September, October and even during November. We can now see the hyacinths coming through the soil, accompanied by daffodils and tulips. The little bulbs of winter are in bud, and one group of an early crocus, C. "Zwanenburg Bronze," already shows its color.

Other winter crocuses, C. sieberi and C. dalmaticus (the former lavender-blue, the other violet-purple) have buds showing too. The winter aconites (Eranthis hyemalis) will keep pace with them, opening during the next few days of January.

ing too. The winter aconites (Eranthis hyemalis) will keep pace with them, opening during the next few days of January.

IN BLOOM
Buds are also visible among the leaves of Narcissus lobularis and N. bulbocodium. These are some of the winter flowering miniature daffodils. In especially sheltered gardens which have not yet received any noticeable frost (and there are many in the Victoria area), all these beauties may be seen in bloom now.

Other garden work which was accomplished during fall included the planting of trees and shrubs. These are now becoming established and can be expected to make a showing by spring. The broad-leaved evergreens such as skimmia, viburnum (certain species), osmaria, camellia and rhododendron are continuing the development of their flower buds during the milder spells of winter.

Growth among all these plants only ceases during extreme cold, so that in our gardens here we do not experience the same reawakening in spring as in colder climates. We have a continuation, a cycle, without beginning or end, so that it is not easy to say—Here is a New Year for my garden.

Nevertheless, we start our calendar New Year with hopes and aspirations, and these, together with plans and determination should add up to a happy and successful gardening year.

Anyway, that is our wish for you!

ANOTHER SLANT

By DICK BACON

MONTREAL (UPI) — The smallest man in the National Hockey League is proving to be one of the biggest surprises of the 1960-61 season.

In the short span of 17 games with Montreal Canadiens, tiny Charlie Hodge has stolen the goaltending job from five-time Vezina Trophy winner Jacques Plante and bids fair to wind up the rookie of the year. Furthermore, the five-foot six-inch, 146-pound, boyish-looking netminder conceivably may succeed Plante as the 1960-61 Vezina winner.

"All I'm worrying about right now is staying with the team," Hodge says.

Hodge's most solid booster is coach Toe Blake, who is booming Charlie as the rookie of the year.

"Sure, there are some pretty good rookies around the league but I'll bet you none of them have played as many good games as Hodge has. He's played 17 games for us and at least 14 of them were really good efforts."

When the season started, few players appeared to be more indispensable than Jacques Plante. But in the early going, the opposition began finding the range on the gaunt, masked backstop and after 21 games he had been beaten 69 times for a 3.28 average, poorest in the NHL. A knee injury didn't help matters. The Canadiens were in third place, two points out of the lead.

Plante was benched and Hodge was called up from the Montreal Royals to fill in. Most observers felt it was only temporary, including Charlie himself. But the Canadiens started winning immediately and the club reeled off eight straight victories before Hodge was finally beaten.

After 17 games, Hodge boasted a record of 13 wins, three defeats and one tie. During that span he allowed only 35 goals for a 2.06 average—best in the NHL.

"Let's face it," added the candid Hodge, "a goalie is only as good as the team in front of him, and the guys in front of me, fellas like Doug Harvey, Tom Johnson, Jean-Guy Talbot and Junior Langlois are really playing well. And the forwards are all back-checking better than before."

Hodge, who admits "I've always been a nervous goalie," looked exceptionally jittery in his early games with the Canadiens.

"I guess I was," he said.

"He was making the big stops for us all along," Blake said, "though I'd have to say he looked a little lucky in the beginning. But now he's making just as many important saves with authority."

"I don't think I'm doing anything different and I can't say I feel any less nervous or more confident," says Hodge.

Hodge, 27, has bounced around, the minors for more than 10 years, seeing duty in such minor league way-stops as Cincinnati, Buffalo, Providence, Seattle, Rochester, Shawinigan and Ottawa.

"But there's only one place to play and that's up here," he said. "It sure beats those bus leagues."

Charlie started wearing a mask this year with Montreal Royals and he still wears a protector in practice but he has discarded it in game action.

"I figured there'd been enough talk about masks around here (the Canadiens have never been completely sold on Plante's wearing one), so I figured the best thing to do was to make sure I didn't aggravate anyone."

Badman Gene Kiniski Knifed by Irate Fan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wrestling badman Gene Kiniski was stabbed in the side by a knife-wielding spectator as he was preparing to leave the ring following his British Empire championship bout with Whipper Billy Watson at Garden Auditorium here Monday night.

Kiniski was jostled by a crowd of fans who invaded the ring after the bout and an unidentified person drove a knife into Kiniski's side in the melee.

Blood poured from the wrestler's wound and he was rushed to Vancouver General Hospital to have it stitched.

Wrestling promoter Rod Fenton said that Kiniski was able to leave the hospital after treatment and left for his home in Minneapolis.

The incident followed a bout in which Watson won a two-falls-to-one victory over Kiniski.

At the same time, a Vancouver man was also cut after he

VAN BROCKLIN WON'T BITE

Those Good Ones Are Hard to Find

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Eagles plan to offer quarterback Norm Van Brocklin the highest salary in the history of the National Football League to play at least another year, but he'll turn it down, it was learned Tuesday.

Van Brocklin wants a head coaching job in pro football. If he doesn't get it, he says he'll pack up the family and go home to Oregon.

"I like money as well as the next guy," the genial passing star said, "but I'm not going to play again. I started with nothing and have more now, so I've no complaints."

Van Brocklin said last winter when he signed a contract estimated in excess of $20,000 that 1960 would be his last year as an active player. He has repeated it hundreds of times since. He said it again after leading the Eagles to the NFL title over the Green Bay Packers.

The Eagles have high regard for the 33-year-old Van Brocklin, both as a player and as a potential coach. But as one source close to the club put it, "Coaches are easy to get; quarterbacks aren't."

NEED PASSER This source said the Eagles needed Van Brocklin more as a passer and quarterback than as a coach. He conceded though that if the former Oregon star remained adamant, the club might make him head coach.

Some sort of promise apparently was made to Van Brocklin to make him a coach after Buck Shaw retired. Shaw announced his retirement last week. The promise may have persuaded the quarterback to sign his 1960 contract. He was ready to quit last year.

The present feeling in the official Eagles family is to try and persuade Van Brocklin to play again. Money is no object. There is some thinking he might play part time and coach too, helped by a top assistant or an advisory coach, maybe Shaw.

A source close to Van Brocklin says the Dutchman will look elsewhere if the Eagles don't make a decision before he leaves for the Jan. 15 pro bowl game in Los Angeles.

Van Brocklin isn't saying whether he has been offered another job or not, but the inference is he has. It is felt he can have the head coaching post of the new Minnesota Vikings.

Dormans Bidding For IAA Honors

Dormans figure to be the Independent Athletic Association team to beat as the squad leads the soccer league and is tied for first in the hockey division.

Northwestern kept level with the puck leaders by downing Cantins 8-0 while Dormans edged Duncan 5-4. The soccer loop remained idle.

Cats Have Eyes on James

Even as a winner, George Agar insists he'll make deals "as long as I'm convinced a trade will help our cause."

Trade talk popped shortly before Agar took his Victoria Cougars to Spokane for tonight's Western Hockey League meeting with the Canucks and although the approach was a negative one, the coach didn't mind letting some of the details slip out.

"It keeps the players on their toes," he said. The inference is that as long as the Cougar players know changes can still be made, they'll hop.

Cougars, who'll be shooting for their fourth straight win in Spokane, have another date this week with Vancouver Canucks—Saturday night in Memorial Arena. A sweep could boost Cougars into third place.

Agar spent considerable time this week with Bud Poile, Edmonton Flyers' manager, discussing a possible trade. Flyers, who have lost eight straight games, are desperate for talent but Agar said nothing came of the talks. There was no mention of the names of players who might be involved.

The names of Gerry James and Norm Waslawski, however, did come up as possible candidates for Cougar livery.

Waslawski, last year's rookie award winner in the WHL, was believed headed for Victoria until Chicago Black Hawks ticketed the 22-year-old forward to Sault Ste. Marie of the Eastern Professional League.

There still is a chance—although Agar emphasized it is a slim one—that James may come to Victoria. A veteran of National League play with Toronto Maple Leafs, James is known for his ruggedness.

One of Canada's outstanding football players, Gerry still belongs to Toronto but is hesitant about making a firm decision about playing hockey until he seriously considers a business offer in Winnipeg.

If James decides to go into business, he definitely won't report to Victoria.

Finney Can Still Crack Whip So Cowboys Trot Ahead Again

CALGARY (CP)—The big nights don't come as often as they once did for Sid Finney of Calgary Stampede but the veteran centre knows how to make the best of them when they do.

Finney blasted four goals past Seattle Totems goalie Bev Bentley Tuesday night as the Stampede moved into sole possession of first place in the Western Hockey League with a 7-2 victory. Calgary had been tied with Vancouver Canucks.

Finney started Calgary's blitz with a goal at 3:26 of the first period, rifling a 30-foot shot into the right corner.

Mare Boileau replied for Totems 36 seconds later but Stampede regained the lead when Norm Johnson scored from 40 feet out.

Finney, mainstay of Calgary's attack for several seasons, tallied twice more in the second period as Stampede took a 5-2 lead. John Koslancic, a rookie right winger, got the other Calgary goal with Eddie Stankiewicz bagging the Seattle marker.

FINNEY MAKES IT SIX

Finney made it 6-2 with five minutes remaining and defenceman Fred Hucul wrapped up the scoring a minute later with a 15-foot screen shot.

Totems, who are tied in third place with Spokane Comets, played well in the first period but tired badly as the game progressed.

Bentley kicked out 35 Calgary shots and was cleanly beaten on five of the seven Stampede goals.

Seattle was hurt most by a weakened defence, which forward Gerry Leonard was playing in place of Frank Arnett, suspended Monday after striking an official in Sunday's game with Spokane.

Calgary goaltender Lucien Dechene, called on to handle only four shots in the second period, kicked out 22 Seattle shots.

Stamps Shelve Russian Jaunt

CALGARY (CP)—Preliminary plans for a three-game tour of Russia by the Calgary Stampede of the Western Hockey League have gone awry and the issue has been shelved for at least a year, the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede announced today.

An official statement blamed bungling of the early negotiations on "lack of proper arrangements at the Russian end" and premature disclosure by the Calgary press of the proposal.

The exhibition official last week confirmed that a New York promoter had been acting as an intermediary between Russian officials and the Stampede.

The official said tentative "feelers" had been received by the club, suggesting a three-game series this spring between the Stampede and the Russian national team, prior to the world hockey championships.

Each played in four games for Rangers, Belisle collecting two goals and Kabel two assists.

They were brought up to fill in for Camille Henry and Dean Prentice, both of whom are now back in the lineup after absences due to injuries.

RUSSIAN BACKERS had not cleared the matter with the Russian state department before contacting the Stampede, then a premature release of the situation had thrown the Russians "into a tailspin."

A professional Canadian hockey team has never played in Russia.

Ten Died In Ring In 1960

NEW YORK (AP)—Ten boxers, five of them professional and five amateur, died in ring contests during 1960 according to the annual survey by Ring magazine.

Four boxers met their death in the United States, two of them pro and two amateur. Four died in Mexico. The other fatalities were in Algeria and France.

Ring's award as fighter of the year went to Floyd Patterson, the 25-year-old New Yorker who became the first man ever to win back the world heavyweight title when he knocked out Ingemar Johansson last June.

Ranked behind Patterson were heavyweight Sonny Liston of Philadelphia, flyweight champion Pone Kingpetch of Thailand, Paul Pender of Brookline, Mass., who is recognized in New York, Massachusetts and Europe as world middleweight champion, and Eder Jofre of Brazil, the NBA bantam king.

The largest fight gate of 1960 was the $824,814.07 drawn by Patterson and Johansson in June at the Polo Grounds.

Combines Rally To Clip Kelowna

Total television money reportedly is $150,000.

Reluctance of the promoters to give him a one-third cut of the TV fee prolonged the negotiations more than three weeks, Sugar Ray explained.

Rangers Return Belisle

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League Tuesday returned forward Bob Kabel to Springfield Indians of the American League and Danny Belisle, another forward, to Vancouver Canucks of the Western League.

Each played in four games for Rangers, Belisle collecting two goals and Kabel two assists.

They were brought up to fill in for Camille Henry and Dean Prentice, both of whom are now back in the lineup after absences due to injuries.

Challenger Discards Get-Rich-Quick Idea

BALTIMORE (AP)—Terry Downes, working out here for his Jan. 14 shot at Paul Pender's middleweight title, has no illusions about getting rich off this fight.

Downes, British champion of the division, is obviously unhappy about the financial details of the Boston bout, in which Pender will defend the European and New York-Massachusetts version of the crown.

Besides taking only $9,750 of the television receipts, compared with Pender's $30,000, Downes also was forced to agree to a return bout within 90 days and a smaller share of that purse if he wins next month.

Fullmer, Sugar Ray Set for Another Go

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gene Fullmer and Sugar Ray Robinson may be matched today for their fourth middleweight title fight at the Las Vegas convention hall, Feb. 25.

Ex-champion Robinson disclosed this morning that the promoters have "tentatively" accepted his television terms, thereby removing apparently the last obstacle.

Champion Fullmer (NBA version) of West Jordan, Utah, and the promoters agreed on terms several days ago.

Sugar Ray is scheduled for a New York conference today with Norman Rothschild of Syracuse, N.Y., who will promote the 15-rounder with Jack Doyle and Mel Greb of Las Vegas.

Total television money reportedly is $150,000.

Reluctance of the promoters to give him a one-third cut of the TV fee prolonged the negotiations more than three weeks, Sugar Ray explained.

Sugar Ray, 39, held Fullmer to a draw last Dec. 3 in Los Angeles and gave such a magnificent performance that a majority of sports writers, arena spectators and TV fans thought Robinson had won.

Fullmer kept his title on the draw and the standing remained even in their three fights, two of which had been staged in 1957.

CANADIAN GRID STYLE FAVORED BY SCHLOREDT

LOS ANGELES (CP)—University of Washington quarterback Bob Schloredt says he may play professional football with B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Before leaving Tuesday for Honolulu and the Hula Bowl game, Schloredt said Dallas of the American League has drafted him and he has been approached by the Lions.

"The Texans think I can play offensive quarterback for them," he said, "but I'm afraid it would take a lot of coaching. I'm better adapted to the Canadian style of play, but I haven't signed yet."

Schloredt, who was named outstanding player of Monday's Rose Bowl game, was not drafted by the National Football League, possibly because of impaired vision that leaves him almost blind in one eye.

Natural Speed

Keep timing precise.

By BILLY GOLEMBIEWSKI

ABC Master's Champion

I'm a little guy so it's tough for me to maintain proper speed.

Keeping my timing precise, however, I get as much as I need on the ball.

At times when I'm not bowling as well as I usually do, I check my speed. Everybody has a tendency to try to break the pins apart.

If my speed is up, my backswing is usually too high and vice versa. The main thing to remember is that a person's natural speed is his best speed.

Old Wing Stars In Hall of Fame

DETROIT (AP) — Wilfred Bucko McDonald and Bill Quackenbush, both defencemen with Detroit Red Wings many years ago, have been voted into the Detroit Hockey Hall of Fame.

McDonald now coaches intermediate hockey in Northern Ontario and Quackenbush is a Boston businessman.

Expenses Hit New High But Lions Still Profit

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions had record income and expenditures during the 1960 football season, but came out in the black in spite of an unusual number of serious injuries that boosted payroll costs.

Club-treasurer John MacDonald in a statement released Tuesday night, reported total operating revenues of $686,500 — not including $4,000 received from club memberships sold — and expenditures of $645,000.

Income was about $13,000 higher than a year earlier, expenditures up $25,000.

In 1959, the Western Interprovincial Football Union Club had total operating revenues of $673,792 and operating expenditures of $620,207.

RIDERS BENEFIT

Added to the expenditures for both 1959 and 1960 is a gate-equalization assessment estimated at about $40,000 — money that goes to the less fortunate operators, particularly Saskatchewan Roughriders.

MacDonald said the club this year had an operating surplus of $41,500 but by the time the equalization assessment was deducted, the net surplus would be $3,000.

This, coupled with the $4,000 from club memberships, meant a total of $7,000 would go into the Lions' surplus account, which since 1954 has been built up to $243,000, including this year's income.

Lions had an increase of $14,000 in ticket sales for its eight home games in the WIFU schedule and earned $17,000 more in exhibitions than it did the year before. But $20,000 it received from a playoff berth in 1959 was lost this year when the club finished fourth.

NOT IN BUDGET

"The major factor in the increase in expenditures," MacDonald said, "was the increase in player salaries as a result of the unusual number of serious injuries experienced by the club this year."

The statement, which did not give a breakdown of income or

More Grief For Interior Puck Teams

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Okanagan Senior Hockey League, beset with financial woes that have reduced it to three teams from five, is feeling another pinch these days — competition for players from apparently richer intermediate leagues in Alberta.

Kamloops Chiefs, one of the steady influences in the league, which now includes Vernon and a combined Kelowna-Penticton team, has lost three star players to intermediate teams in Alberta during the last week and at least two more regulars are considering offers.

Players have been offered up to $400 a month and a job by the intermediates.

The Chiefs have already lost goalie John Panagrot, defenceman Don Busch and centre Shorty Styles. Larry Berg and Harley Hodgson are the players considering offers.

British Bettors Wage Record Sum

LONDON (AP) — British horse race players bet a record $84,702,786 on the tote last year, the Race-Course Control Board announced this week.

Britons usually bet about the same amount each year on the tote — comparable with North America's pari-mutuel system — and with individual bookies. So Britain's betting bill on the horses amounted to about $168,000,000 in 1960.

Highest betting for one day was at Royal Ascot in July, when bettors tried their luck to the extent of $1,009,506.

Canadians Voted Best in America

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Merrill, Brantford, Ont., currently operating in Florida, was the leading trainer of the 1960 North American thoroughbred racing season. It was the third time he had taken the honor since 1955.

In Lexington, Ky., Clint Hodgins, Cladeboye, Ont., veteran harness driver and trainer, was named 1960 horseman of the year by the Horseman and Fair World magazine.

Hodgins has been driving trotters and pacers for nearly 40 of his 53 years. For the second year in a row, his mounts had earnings of more than $500,000 in 1960. "Earnings of horses Hodgins had driven during the last 10 years total more than $2,700,000. The magazine made the award on the basis of balloting by horsemen throughout the world.

Detroit-Loses Blue Line Pair

DETROIT (AP) — Warren Godfrey and Marc Reaume, Detroit Red Wings regular defencemen, were sidelined Monday as a result of injuries received in Sunday night's National Hockey League game with the Black Hawks, at Chicago.

Coach Sid Abel said the pair aggravated old injuries as the Hawks whipped the Wings 3-0. Abel called up 22-year-old defenceman Rich Healy from Sudbury-Wolves in the Eastern pro league to help fill the gap.

Godfrey and Reaume are expected to be back for next Sunday's game with Boston here.

BOOSTERS MEET

A meeting of the Victoria Cougars' Booster Club will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at 1839 Carnarvon Street.

Abel said Godfrey aggravated a back injury and Reaume an injured toe.

Duncan to Hold Tax Line In 1961, Mayor Promises

(From Duncan Bureau)
Tax rate in Duncan will not be increased in 1961 as city council continues operating on a "pay as you go" basis. Mayor Jack Dobson said in his inaugural address Tuesday.

Council tabled a provisional budget calling for a total expenditure of $448,920, compared with $419,240 last year.

Major items listed were $95,637 for education (last year $102,290); $67,200 for public works (last year $62,400); and $16,500 for recreation and community services, unchanged from last year.

In reviewing progress made during the past year the mayor said street widening and construction of new sidewalks will be a continuing program.

SEWER VOTE
Plans for modernizing the city's sewer system are in hand, and council intends to place a bylaw before ratepayers soon.

Noting that 50 acres of land in the city are in various stages of development for recreational activity, Mayor Dobson appealed to the public to keep sport in the district alive.

COMEBACK
The Cowichan Valley, he said, was once recognized as a sports centre "and I am glad to see that we are regaining that reputation."

Newly-elected aldermen and school trustees sworn into office at a ceremony conducted by Magistrate A. C. Sutton were Aldermen R. K. Cairns and J. H. Saunders, and Trustees Mrs. I. Tarlton, Stan Holgate, Grant Loveseth, Wilfred Peck and Pat Mason.

Guests were Robert Strachan, Cowichan - Newcastle MLA; Walter F. Matthews, Nanaimo MP; Mrs. Mildred Child, chairman, Lake Cowichan village commission; Chief Louise Underwood, Cowichan Indian Band; Coun. Tony Staples, North Cowichan, and Rev. Brian Page.

SIDNEY MAN SAYS YOUNG WIFE TOOK HIS MONEY

Bride Must Return Hubby's Land

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Mildred Smithers, 29-year-old bride, has been ordered to return five acres of land to her 79-year-old husband and to account for $3,000 drawn from their joint bank account.

Horse trainer Andrew Smithers, Sidney, V.I., deeded the five acres of property in Surrey last August to his bride, Mildred. The couple was married last June and Smithers claimed he assigned a land conveyance presented to him in August because he thought it was a document concerning his marriage.

On Tuesday, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris restored the property to Smithers.

Smithers accused Mildred of cleaning out his three bank accounts, totalling about $3,000, after he put them in their joint names shortly after the marriage. The land was valued at from $7,000 to $10,000.

Car Theft Charge
LADYSMITH — Pte. Joseph Daniel Laflamme, 19, stationed at Work Point, Victoria, with the PPCLI, was remanded to Jan. 11 after pleading, not guilty in police court here Tuesday to a charge of car theft.

Magistrate W. H. Bryant set bail at $500.

Laflamme was arrested by police at 3:30 a.m. New Year's Day, about half an hour after Harry Yori, Ladysmith, reported his car taken from outside a dance hall. Police said silver paper had been inserted in the ignition to get the car started.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers at home. Remains are being forwarded to Vancouver for private services.

Businessman Dies

DUNCAN — A well-known resident of Duncan and Maple Bay, Frederick Reginald Gooding, 71, died here Saturday following a brief illness.

Born in Southampton, England, he came to Duncan 50 years ago. An active community and service club worker, he was a past president of the Duncan Rotary Club, an honorary life member and past commodore of the Maple Bay Yacht Club, and was once active in tennis, golf and badminton clubs.

Up until the time of his death, he had been associated with Corfield Motors.

SURVIVORS

He is survived by the widow, Margaret; two daughters, Miss

Joyce Gooding, at home, and Mrs. David Garriock, North Vancouver; four grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. P. B. Ingoldby, England.

Funeral services were to be held from St. John's Anglican Church at 2 p.m. today, with Rev. Canon Brian Page officiating. Interment will be in St. Peter's Churchyard, Quamichan.

Truck Damaged In Deer Crash

CHEMAINUS — A one-ton truck, owned by B.C. Forest Products Ltd., Crofton division, and driven by William Durrell, was damaged early this morning when it struck a deer.

The accident occurred at 1:30 a.m. on the Trans-Canada Highway near the intersection of Henry Road. Damage to the truck was estimated at $125.

NEW HIGH HIT IN HOSPITAL EMERGENCIES

Work load at the city's two general hospital emergency wards rose to a new high in 1960 with a total of 29,268 patients handled, an increase of 464 over 1959.

Royal Jubilee handled the most cases—16,940, compared with 16,849 the year before—but St. Joseph's handled more straight emergency cases.

Officials point out that Jubilee's figures are bolstered by a large number of "interim" cases and special out-patient work ordered by family doctors that have no counterpart at St. Joseph's.

The latter dealt with 12,328 cases, an increase of 373 over 1959. Of these, 353 were traffic accidents.

The worst months at both hospitals are April-August, inclusive, when holidays and outdoor activities bring on accidents. Each of these months recorded over 1,000 cases and at Jubilee the monthly average the year round is between 1,400 and 1,500 patients.

Court Says Woman Suffocated Child

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — A grandmother was charged with murder of her five-year-old granddaughter in provincial court here Tuesday.

Wearing a colorful kerchief and her small hunchback body draped in a black coat, Mary Legebokoff, 55, of Glade stood arms crossed as an interpreter explained the charge to her in Russian as read by stipendiary magistrate K. D. McRae.

The woman is accused of suffocating by drowning, Nina Perepolkin, only child of Mrs.

Ann Perepolkin, a widow, New Year's Eve, in a community bathhouse at Glade, 18 miles west of Nelson.

She was remanded until Jan. 12 for further hearing, most likely at Burnaby, and will be held in custody in Oakalla Prison farm to undergo further medical examination.

The child was found face down in a large laundry tub in the bathhouse. Her mother was absent from the area at the time.

Missionaries Flee

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters)—Twenty American missionaries have fled from unruly Congolese troops in the eastern Congo; it was disclosed here. One missionary said he was beaten by troops believed to be supporters of arrested Premier Patrice Lumumba, but was allowed to go after being robbed.

Chatterton Willing to Try for Pearkes' Seat

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton today confirmed he will answer the call for nomination as a federal by-election candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Mr. Chatterton, in a statement, said he still was a federal civil servant, and as such must resign to enter politics.

He is expected to be the Conservative candidate for the seat in Parliament formerly held by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

Mr. Chatterton today would ally himself to no party. However, the Conservatives make no secret that he's the man they'd like to have in the running.

"I consider that the highest form of public service can be rendered as a member of Parliament for Canada," said Mr. Chatterton today.

There are two other avowed would-be Conservative candidates, engineer John C. B. Keane and Cecil Holms, formerly federal Conservative organizer for B.C.

Mr. Chatterton is regional supervisor for Vancouver Island of the Veterans' Land Act.

Early-Day Germs Were Straight-Shooters

Demolition crews began tearing down more than a brick building Tuesday as the old administration centre at Royal Jubilee Hospital went under the wreckers' sledgehammers.

They also are tearing down the last vestige of a 19th century concept of medicine based on the theory that germs could not go around corners.

The structure was built in 1890. It is being torn down to prepare a site for the new five-storey, 195-bed wing which will cost almost $3,000,000.

Believed to be the oldest existing part of the hospital, it was connected with two wards by French corridors.

These corridors were curved because of a theory at the time which held that microbes travelled only in a straight line.

So it was believed that curved corridors would impede the spread of illness.

One of the curved corridors is now part of the main hospital building which has been modernized, the other will be removed by the demolition project.

Approximately $78,000 has been spent already on eight other preliminary projects clearing the way for construction of the main addition, hospital authorities said.

These include: $5,000 for renovating laundry services;

$5,000 for a temporary connecting corridor between existing wings; $13,852 for expanding and renovating the main kitchen; $5,000 for improving the maintenance shop. Some $30,000 for a new boiler installation to handle the increase in heating requirements; $5,554 for relocating the doctors' parking lot; $4,252 for relocating the intern's residence, and $9,000 for improving the telephone and doctors' call system.

City Faces Tough Job In Enticing Industry

Tourism Best Bet Survey Indicates

Enticing light industry to the Victoria area will be a tough job requiring vigorous promotion, city council was told Tuesday through a survey of development possibilities ordered a year ago.

The tourist industry still appears as the best bet for area prosperity, the survey also indicated. It was conducted for the city by the now-defunct Western Development Company and the marketing division of B.C. Electric which took it over.

The report was distributed at the inaugural meeting of council and Mayor Percy Scourrah asked aldermen to give it close study to see if any of its recommendations could be implemented.

The report said there appeared little likelihood that the primary industries in the capital region would increase much in the future, but pointed out that government employment probably will grow and remain a vital factor in the economy.

All that civic government could do to encourage expansion of basic industry is to attract and hold a labor force by improving amenities such as parks and playgrounds, beautification projects, roads and good standards of residential and commercial development.

The new government ferries will increase possibilities of more business for local firms but also will increase competition from mainland enterprises.

Industrial 'Sparkplug' Needed

To encourage new light industry to the area, the report recommended:

1. Selection of a key man to spearhead the search for manufacturing opportunities;
2. A group of interested business leaders—probably within the Chamber of Commerce—should be formed to work towards the objective;
3. The group should make a realistic appraisal of the types of industry that could locate here and try to interest prospective companies in the Victoria area;
4. The group should compile a directory of information needed by a company contemplating a new location;
5. The group should also strive to obtain local financial participation in new industrial operations.

The report also urged reservation of suitable land, mostly in outlying areas, for industrial development. It suggested good sites could be found along the Trans-Canada Highway at Sooke Highway junction and in the Burnside Road area; other sites could be found along the Patricia Bay Highway.

The Langford area was particularly suitable for manufacturing sites, the report said.

Promote development of a highway tour for the south coast of the island which has scenery second to none in the province and "it made more accessible would command the attention of the tourist on a par with such popular places as the Grand Canyon, Yosemite, Carlsbad, Banff and others."

Provide more beach parks, particularly those with camping facilities; encourage development of marinas by zoning suitable areas.

Encourage Convention Business

Other fields that should be studied are methods of encouraging more convention business, possibility of establishing a "free port" zone, and ways of attracting company head offices, research and medical clinics to the city.

Redevelopment of run-down areas of the city centre is important to the city's future, the report said.

The process of reclaiming prosperous business along these streets would probably be hastened considerably if the buildings were given a general face-lifting and out-dated and unnecessary signs were removed.

"Many of the buildings are structurally sound. Their architecture, although dated, is pleasing and is of a style that has long made Victoria a famous tourist attraction."

A new City Hall could set the pace for such development, the report said.

Regarding the cost of a civic auditorium, the report said experience in other cities showed these projects were well worthwhile and "the question might well be asked—can Victoria afford not to have an auditorium?"

The show will open daily at 1 p.m. and close at midnight with an admission of 90 cents. The entertainment goes on at 3.15, 7.15 and 9.15 with each show lasting close to an hour.

Sponsoring members of the Victoria Auto Dealers' Association are: Empress Motors Ltd., Horwood Bros., Jameson Motors Ltd., Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd., National Motors (Victoria) Ltd., Olson Motors Ltd., Thomas Plimley Ltd., Pacific Chrysler Products Ltd., Mooney & Sons, and Speedway Motors Ltd.

Fourth Ferry Asked By Mayor

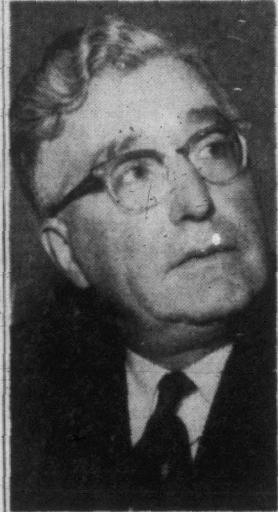

Mayor Percy Scourrah today urged the provincial government to build two more government ferries instead of one as planned at present.

His appeal was strengthened by Victoria publicity commissioner William Hawkins who predicted the city could reap up to $100,000,000 worth of extra tourist business in 1962 if it has the ferry service needed to bring customers here.

Both men have their eyes on the "tremendous impact" that the Seattle world fair will have on Victoria, which also celebrates its centennial in 1962.

The mayor said present transportation services appear to be inadequate for handling the rush of people that will come here as an overflow from the world fair.

"In view of all this, I wonder if the time hasn't come to ask the government to build two new ferries instead of one so that we have a fleet of four fast auto-carrying ferries ready in 1962."

TALK ON "FEDERALISM AND FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOMS" will be given by Dean George F. Curtis of University of British Columbia, at a public meeting of the University Extension Association of Victoria in Victoria College auditorium Monday at 8.15 p.m.

Dean Curtis, a member of the university's law faculty, has served on several royal commissions and was a delegate to the United Nations conference on the law of the sea at Geneva in 1958.

SPECIAL ACCOUNTANT AT WORK

'New Everything' Planned at Arena

Memorial Arena commission vice-chairman W. F. Pinfold confirmed today that a special accountant has been brought in to reorganize the accounting system.

He also said that appointment of a new arena manager will be made in the next few days and it appeared likely that the office manager's post held by Kenneth Noakes would be abolished under the new set up.

"I'm finishing this job and when I'm through the arena will be running better than it ever has before," said Mr. Pinfold. "There will be a new system and a new everything."

Mr. Pinfold would not reveal the identity of the special accountant who is planning details of the re-organization.

The reorganization was revealed after city council Tuesday accepted behind closed doors the resignations of commission chairman Frank Mulliner and Courtney Haddock.

CHANCE TO APPLY

Mr. Haddock resigned in protest against "unfair" treatment to the six employees, led by Mr. Noakes, who precipitated the arena controversy by resigning last fall.

Mayor Percy Scourrah, after the closed meeting, said council respected Mr. Haddock's feelings but did not feel the employees had been treated unfairly because they were given a chance to apply for reinstatement.

The mayor also said Mr. Mulliner resigned on doctor's orders.

Both commissioners will be replaced by council at its next meeting but the appointments will be made behind closed doors.

"We're tightening the whole operation up," said Mr. Pinfold. "Things were in a mess as far as I'm concerned and you know who left them in a mess."

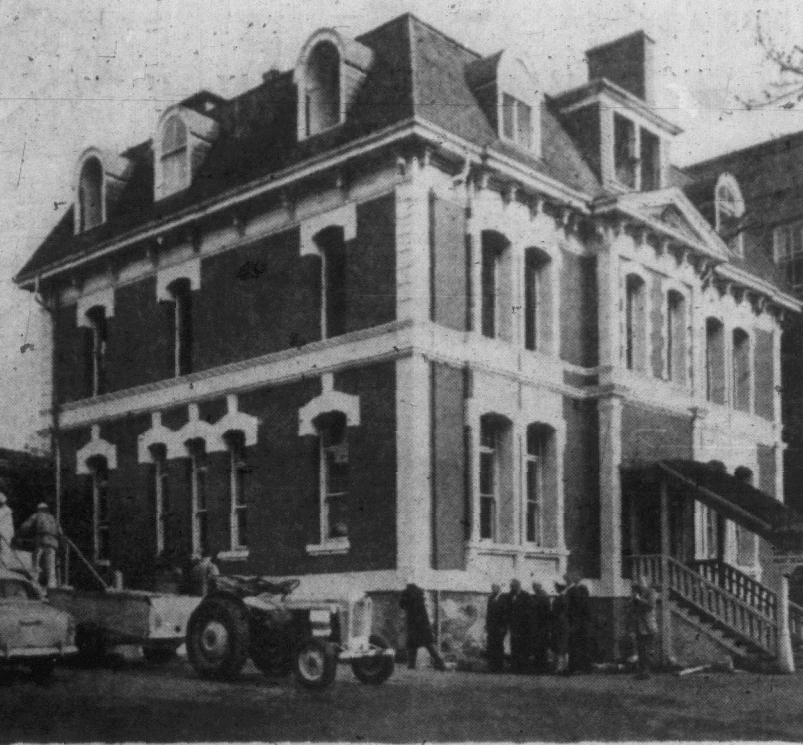

He would not discuss under what conditions the new arena manager would be appointed. Jack Morgan, manager of the Nelson civic arena, apparently has been selected for the job.

"The new man will take over features of the five-day show will be displays of 45

SEVENTY YEARS OF SERVICE to Royal Jubilee Hospital has ended for this familiar brick building. Built in 1890 as a wing of the old hospital, it has been the administrative centre in recent years. Demolition began Tuesday to clear its site for erection of a new five-storey wing.

MONTE ROBERTS

You've had '60, do you want to try for '61?

Our Very Own Summary of 1960: this year came along fairly soon after 1959, but nobody knows quite why.

And Our Very Own Fearless Forecast for 1961: 1961 will be followed by 1962, if all goes well.

Now for a word to all constituents who have quit smoking for the New Year.

Quitting smoking is very simple, if you have the proper mental attitude.

This was borne home to me as a great truth during the course of a get-together on New Year's Day.

There was this fellow, see, and somebody offered him a cigarette, and he said, no thanks, don't use them. And there was this other fellow, who had sworn off the weed as of midnight the night before, and was looking for a little moral support.

"You quitting, too?" the second fellow asked of the first fellow, eagerly.

"Not quitting, I've quit," the first fellow answered.

"Ah-hah," said the second fellow. "What's your reason? Save money? Filthy habit? Afraid of lung cancer? Worried about lack of breath?"

"None," said the first fellow. "I quit years ago because I am a lazy slob."

"Not just an ordinary lazy slob," the first fellow went on, proudly. "I am a real, genuine, lie down and relax lazy slob."

"I am so lazy, I begrudge the effort to dig a pack of smokes out of my pocket, place one between my lips, find a match, scratch it, light the cigarette, and inhale."

"I find it trouble enough," said the first fellow, "to chew my food and drink the necessities of life, without going to the extra trouble of smoking. A true lazy slob is ideally suited to be a non-smoker by temperament," said the first fellow.

"My mother," said the second fellow, "always said the devil finds work for idle hands to do."

"I cannot," said the second fellow, "find it in my heart to let my old mother down and become a lazy slob."

"Anybody got a match?" the second fellow asked.

Mud Saves Youth As 'Dozer Rolls

A young bulldozer operator, pinned for 20 minutes under a five-ton tractor, is alive and well today because he landed in a puddle of soft mud before the machine landed on top of him.

Admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning was Albert Smith, 18, of Tyndall Avenue, who was treated for shock, a fractured left wrist, numerous bruises, and extensive burns caused by raw gasoline from the machine's tank dripping onto his skin.

His condition was described as "fairly good."

LOADING ON TRUCK

The accident occurred at the Saanichton farm of G. A. Vantreight as the victim, an employee of Mr. Vantreight, was loading the heavy machine on to a truck.

It slipped from the deck of the truck, threw Smith to the ground, then landed on top of him. His leg was pinned to the ground by an arm of the seat, but the remainder of his body was under the seat of the machine, where there was about six inches of clearance.

"If the ground had not been soft he'd have been a goner," said Central Saanich police, who attended.

ROLLED AWAY

Police and two other men at the farm with Smith hitched a near-by farm tractor to one side of the bulldozer, then by lifting on the other side were able to roll it away from the man beneath.

Smith was taken to hospital by Central Saanich Volunteer Fire Department Ambulance.

Inquest Set For Jan. 12 In Shooting

An inquest will be held Jan. 12 at 1.30 p.m. in Courtenay into the double shooting of two RCAF non-commissioned officers Monday morning.

RCMP today refused to reveal details of what they said would be a full investigation into the tragedy, but said there is no doubt the shooting was a murder and suicide.

Dead are Flt. Sgt. Bertram Baylis Simms, 38, works foreman at Comox RCAF Station, and Flt. Sgt. Keith Alexander MacGregor, 49, on temporary duty here from Calgary with a construction unit.

Bodies of the two men were found in MacGregor's home, each with a bullet wound in the head. A long-barrelled target pistol, said by police to be the property of MacGregor, was found nearby.

WIFE AWAY

It has been suggested that marriage troubles might have been the cause of the tragedy. Mrs. MacGregor was in Calgary at the time of the shooting, while Mrs. Simms and her two children were in residence in the RCAF married quarters at the station.

Inquest opened Tuesday for viewing of the bodies, then was adjourned to the later date.

The two airmen were acquainted, but were not close companions.

The investigation was launched when a neighbor, Robert Lay, went to MacGregor's Rye Road home to extend a New Year greeting to the airman, and saw a bullet hole in a window pane.

Church Fires Investigation Continuing

Fire investigators are still probing the causes of two church fires that alarmed Victoria early in December.

Deputy fire marshal Henry Jenks, at his Vancouver office, said today, his investigators are working on the ruins of St. John's Anglican and the damaged basement of First United Church—a short block apart—where police suspected a pyromaniac lit fires the early morning of Dec. 9.

Informed of Mayor Percy Scourrah's remark last week to the effect that unofficial reports discount incendiarism, deputy fire marshal Jenks said:

"That was my opinion in the first place, but that is neither here nor there."

"The investigation is still in progress and I have had no report from my men. I know what they are doing, but there is no report yet."

SONOROUS BOOMING heard across the waters of Juan de Fuca Strait today came from four-inch guns of two Pacific Command frigates on surface firing exercises.

High level of humidity in the air magnified the sounds beyond their usual volume.

Carrying out the exercises from 9 to 10.30 a.m. were HMCS Jonquiere and Antigone.

Saanich council Tuesday approved an application of dairyman J. S. Budge to rezone a parcel of property at the corner of Quadra Street and Tuxedo Drive for commercial use. A store for the sale of dairy products will be built on the site.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Gordon Carter, a former police commissioner, will be returned to the city police commission next week.

C. I. Dowman, retiring commissioner, was not re-appointed as reported by The Times Tuesday. Mr. Dowman attended the civic swearing-in ceremony but did not take the oath of office for another term. Later, he said he was not informed that he was being replaced by Mr. Carter.

Mr. Carter's appointment to a two-year term will be confirmed by city council at its next meeting and he will be sworn-in immediately afterwards, Mayor Percy Scourrah said.

The Adoption Committee of Displaced Persons will hold its monthly meeting next Monday from 12 to 1 p.m. in the basement of St. Andrew's Catholic Cathedral, 740 View Street.

The super-tanker Harold H. Helm, due here Tuesday for survey and painting by Yarrows Ltd., has been delayed at Long Beach, Calif., and is now expected to arrive Friday.

The $5,000-ton giant will enter the Government Graving Dock immediately on arrival. Keel blocks have already been laid.

Winners of Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club's weekly tournament Tuesday were as follows:

Section One—North-South: First, William McConnell and Richard Lipsey; second, Cliff Forrester and Paul Smith; third, Marjorie Crookston and Lillian Le Butt. East-West: First, Lillian Goodwin and Isabel Artlett; second, Otto Leesmeit and Eric Goodwin; third, Ann Kocutyn and Freda Small.

Section Two—North-South: First, Jack Goldie and Douglas Hawkes; second, Elizabeth Warren and Tony Marsh; third, Jack Patterson and Gordon Rodger. East-West: First, Ricki Nickells and James Duprau; second, Fred Hallett and John Allen; third, Walter Allen and Eric Horwood.

More than 800 motorists lined up here Tuesday to get the first 1961 "shocking pink" car licences, which must be in place by the end of February.

This is a 40 to 50 per cent increase over the usual first day sales.

THURSDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Rotary Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. David Monk, director of public information and education, B.C. Forest Service, will show a film, "Mud Slings."

Oak Bay Kiwanis: 6.15 p.m., Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Last chapter of a trip round the world with Dr. R. H. McDougall.

Victoria Optimists: Noon, fifth floor, Yarrow Building, Fort Street.

Victoria Y's Men's Club: 6.30 p.m., YMCA. Viv Shoe-maker will talk on amalgamation of YMCA and YWCA.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I watched a TV show the other day on American humor. Among panel members was John Lardner, the writer. I was under the impression this man died. Did he? A.O.M.

A. Yes, he died a few months ago. It was a taped show.

Q. I am wondering if it is against any bylaws for neighbors and visitors next door to toot their car horns on arrival and departure. It is an annoyance. C.B.A.

A. To use a car horn for anything other than as a warning is against the law. Persons can be fined $10 for unnecessary use of the horn.

Feel Weary and Worn?
You'll Appreciate These

By PENNY SAVER

Party time is fun but a gal has to remember that too many late nights and social engagements take an exacting toll. One well-known cosmetic manufacturer has decided to give a hand with this problem, bringing out two brand new items that every busy woman should investigate.

One, a day cream, is inspired by European influences. It includes placentine, the factor which promotes cell growth before birth. This cream is different from most because it penetrates to the cell layer of your skin where dry skin problems begin. When used, it will firm up skin and feed moisture so that fighting wrinkles and tension lines becomes child's play.

One-ounce jar is priced at $1.75, while a four-ounce jar sells at $5.

If you have a husband who objects to seeing you with "goo" on your face, this firm's second new item is going to be the best friend you've ever had!

Apart from its ability to perform beauty "miracles" it will win approval from both wives and their husbands because of its non-messy action. Just as much as will go on a fingertip each night is all you need. It disappears in a matter of seconds and almost immediately you feel your skin becoming fresher and softer. As an introductory offer, a jar containing almost an ounce that normally sells at $3.50, is now priced at $2.75.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Be Sure You Have Enough Iron in Diet

Our diet is extremely important in maintaining the health of our blood. Several conditions can cause anemia, but the most usual cause is an inadequate amount of iron in the diet. This mineral is essential to the manufacture of hemoglobin. Small amounts of copper also are necessary for the proper utilization of the iron.

Diet-induced anemia is not unusual. Many of the highly refined and polished foods have a low iron content and many folks eat sparingly of foods rich in iron such as vegetables and salad greens and meat. A deficiency in protein intake is a factor in certain types of anemia. Vitamin C deficiency also has been thought to play a part in anemia.

A mild anemia is not rare during pregnancy. This is especially apt to happen if the prospective mother experiences nausea during the first few months of pregnancy. The mother's blood must carry oxygen and food for two instead of one. Therefore, an iron-rich diet is especially important during this nine months. If the future mother runs into anemic trouble, her physician probably will prescribe some iron supplement and reinforce her diet with iron potent foods, proteins and vitamins.

Babies usually come into the world with a supply of iron to last them for several months, but if the mother was anemic during pregnancy the baby may be anemic, too. These children are more susceptible to infections and should be treated early.

So, we should take our diets seriously as to their health value as well as their pleasant taste. Iron intake is especially important during pregnancy, before and after an operation or when there has been any unusual loss of blood.

Many people go along for years feeling tired because of

DEAR ABBY

Maybe He Was Feathering Nest!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to a good-looking truck driver for 10 years. I am not the suspicious type, but listen to this: The other night he came off the road with two long scratches on his left hip. They were fairly deep scratches, yet neither his shorts nor his trousers were ripped.

When I asked him how it happened, he said it was probably from a feather in the bed. Now, Abby, I love my husband and I am not looking for any trouble, but do they still have feather beds in modern motels? And could anyone get scratched like this from a feather?

DEAR NOT: It's unlikely that the scratches came from a feather. It was probably the whole chick. Keep your eyes open.

DEAR ABBY: What do you tell your friends and relatives when they ask you what your husband gave you for your 10th wedding anniversary? He's not the thoughtful type, but he's a swell guy.

OVERLOOKED
DEAR OVERLOOKED: Tell them he gave you 10 wonderful years.

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heartbroken girl in the world. My mother gave away Snowball, my kitty, because she scratched my hand when I was putting a doll's diaper on her. It was an accident, I'm sure. Please, Abby, tell my mother I'll do anything to get Snowball back. When I was in school yesterday she gave him to the egg man to take to his farm.

WET PILLOW (I am 10)
DEAR WET PILLOW: I am appealing to your mother to please get Snowball back. But, honey, Snowball scratched you on purr-puss. Never try to put a diaper over a fur coat.

"My ideal!" is the way Glenys Parry speaks of Mme. Ranjit Pandit, who gave her an autographed picture after they had tea together in London.

Languages Fascinate This Young Victorian

By SUSAN BUTT

Lytton Strachey has said, "Perhaps of all the creations of man, language is the most astonishing."

Sharing this wonder is 20-year-old Glenys Parry of Victoria, a third-year student at University of British Columbia, who paraphrased Strachey's statement during a recent interview.

Although Miss Parry is honoring in history at university her enthusiasm over her auxiliary French major indicates French is, at least, her second love as well as her most profitable one.

This intelligent miss is the current holder of four scholarships and awards for her second-year's work at Victoria College, and her French achievements predominate.

AWARDS

They are L'Alliance Française Scholarship, French Government Medal, IODE Golden Jubilee Scholarship and the Mme. Sanderson memorial award for English and French.

This language whiz has studied Latin and German besides French and hopes to take Russian in the future.

"French is the most musical language I've ever run into," she says. "German is very guttural and offends my ear."

Growing popularity of Russian in schools and colleges has a firm foundation, she explains. It is important for communication in international affairs and articles in Russian scientific journals are becoming imperative to research and study in the western world.

START EARLY

Lack of language proficiency in British Columbia is due to lack of training she believes.

"If at all possible French or any language should be started in grade one. You find an average European speaking four or five languages, not because they are more intelligent than Canadians, but because they have more opportunity and instruction."

English is not neglected by this young lady who finds further expression for her lively personality in creative writing. She racked up an honorable mention in the Daily Times' Benny Nicholas writing contest last year with some of her poetry.

WINS TRIP

The summer Miss Parry graduated from Oak Bay High School, she embarked on a tour of the United Kingdom with representatives from 22 nations. She had won the trip by writing a 1,000-word essay on "The Future of the Commonwealth" for the Royal Commonwealth Society's essay contest.

Within two weeks of winning that trip she was awarded $150 for topping a similar contest sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

She made many friends while on tour in England, Scotland and Wales with whom she still corresponds.

Most vivid recollection of the tour was having tea with Mme. Ranjit Pandit, High Commissioner for India in London and former president of United Nations Assembly.

"She's one of the most dynamic women I've ever met," enthuses Miss Parry. "As a career diplomat she's my ideal."

BACK TO STUDIES

Next few days will see Glenys travelling back to Vancouver after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Parry of Kinross Avenue. Her busy holiday schedule included being guest of honor at a tea given by Mrs. A. J. Tullis of L'Alliance Française.

The thoughtful Miss Parry loves Vancouver which she describes as a "vital city" with many "cultural" goings on and an excellent symphony.

University life is a world in itself, she says. "Most students are self-centred. They are working towards a goal and other people are incidental."

But she loves it and may even lecture in a university some day. She's also considering a career in diplomacy or international affairs. First, however, she is facing a master of arts degree at University of Toronto and a possible doctorate at University of London, Eng.

In the meantime she'll enjoy her studies and her hobbies (classical music and UBC Letters Club) and life!

THE WINTER SEASON

There are many pleasant ways to spend the longer winter evenings; reading a good book... watching television... building things etc. To achieve the maximum pleasure and benefit, it is important that your glasses be adequate for the purpose. Have your eyes examined soon and bring the prescription for glasses to either of our two offices where you do benefit from service that is unexcelled.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume Encyclopedia to Michelle Firestone, 10, University Heights, Ohio, for her question:

Which Planet Is Nearest to Us?

In September 1956, Mars was the planet nearest to us. The earth and Mars were closer than 35 million miles. Then the two planets moved away from each other and about one year later they were more than 130 million miles apart. Sometimes Mars and the earth are 234 million miles apart. In September 1959, Venus was the closest planet and only was 26 million miles away—but not for long. In June, 1960, nine months later, the earth and Venus were 160 million miles apart.

The planet Mercury can come no closer to us than 56 million miles. But when Mars and Venus are as far away as they can get, Mercury could be our nearest planet neighbor. Jupiter can come no closer than 390 million miles and all the other planets must stay still further away from us. Our nearest planet neighbor changes with the times.

But it is always Mars, Venus or Mercury.

We can solve this problem with two looks at the Solar System. First, let's tell the whirling planets to stand still. We can then see where each one can go and where it can't go. For each must stay in its orbit and travel at its own speed.

The orbits are the planet paths around the sun. They are almost circles, though some are more oval-shaped than others. Mercury has the inside orbit, about 36 million miles from the sun. The second orbit, about 67 million miles from the sun, belongs to Venus. The third orbit, about 92 million miles from the sun, belongs to the earth. The fourth orbit belongs to Mars. It is an oval path with one end 129 million miles and the other end 154 million miles from the sun. Our orbit is between the orbit of Venus and the orbit of Mars.

Closest While Passing

Now let's set the planets whirling and bring our still picture to life. Mercury, traveling at 36 miles a second, whips around its orbit once every 88 earth days. Venus travels her yearly orbit in 225 earth days. Our earth takes us around its orbit at about 18 1/2 miles a second. We make two circles around the sun while Mars is making only one. As they whirl around the sun, the inside planets catch up and pass the outside planets. The earth catches and passes Mars once in about two years. When this happens, Mars and earth are closest. Venus catches and passes the earth once in a little less than two years. When this happens, Venus and earth are closest.

Earth's orbit is an almost circle inside the oval orbit of Mars. At the closest point, the two orbits are less than 35 million miles apart. The planets whirl into this position every 15 or 17 years. The orbit of Venus is a circle inside our orbit. The two paths are about 26 million miles apart, which means that Venus can come closer than any other planet. Earth and Venus whirl into this position once in every 594 days. This will happen on April 10 of this year.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Lamenda Johnson, age 15, of Rockford, Ill., for her question:

Are viruses bacteria?

The viruses and the bacteria belong in the world of microbes, though they are not at all related to each other. The bacteria are the simplest of all plants and not one of them is large enough to be seen without the help of a microscope. The viruses are even more simple. Some experts believe that they are too simple to be classified as living things. They may be merely complex chemicals.

In the world of microbes, we might compare some of the bacteria with big land animals such as apes and tigers. On this scale, some of the larger viruses would compare with insects. Actually, in the microbe world, bacteria are often attacked by germ viruses, much as we are.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—That was a funny year we just had. And there was one very funny thing about it—

When I printed the best jokes for the first half of 1960, there wasn't one about Jack Kennedy—and the lead-off quip was one by Jan Murray, who had said:

"I wouldn't say that Nixon is confident, but during a rainstorm he called the White House and asked Mamie to close the windows."

As Bob Hope has since said, "I had the world's greatest file of golf jokes and they elected a guy that plays touch football!"

"Kennedy's mother is going to let him stay up and watch the election returns" was an early entry. Jack Kennedy reportedly went crying to his mother that "Bobby wants to play with my country." When the future First Lady had a son, all the comics predicted "there are going to be a lot of changes made around the White House."

Castro, according to Joe E. Lewis, stole from the rich and gave to the poor: like, for example, to his poor brother and his poor sister. . . . Somebody deep in the Congo supposedly had cabled Khrushchev: "Please, send us more Communist agents. That last batch was delicious."

The feud between Producer

Merrick and Comedian Gleason wound up with Gleason swatting golf balls with Merrick's picture on them, while Merrick claimed that "once when he asked his doctor to examine Gleason, there was so much to examine, the doctor charged him overtime."

Gary Crosby said that his brother Lindsay was so young when he got married, they didn't go on a honeymoon—they went to camp.

Anyway it was just this year that Mort Sahl said "President Eisenhower is in complete charge of everything whenever Vice President Nixon leaves the country."

"DON'T PRINT THAT!" One of the female Broadway stars shocks the Sardi's Set with her language—and that isn't easy. . . . Which of the husbands of the beautiful singer belts her around until she's pretty sick of it? . . . One of the new B'way stage stars is getting so British and so lofty her chums can't stand her any more.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: One of the "Gypsy" chorines said it this way: "He's the last of the Big Spenders. He spends every evening at my place."

That's earl, brother.

CITY NEWS BRIEFS

Just out of jail a month, John Fallardeau, of Victoria, spent Christmas in the city lockup and will spend the next 30 days in Oakalla jail after sentence in city police court Saturday for obstructing a policeman.

He was arrested a week ago after Cons. James Hotchkiss had difficulty with him during investigation of another matter. Fallardeau "repeatedly interfered with the investigation," Magistrate William Ostler noted, by interrupting and answering for another man who was being questioned about a smashed window.

Last-minute claims for the $50 provincial home-owner grant were made by about 100 residents in the Greater Victoria area Friday.

Deadline for applications was 5 p.m. Many owners didn't realize until almost too late they could receive the home-owner grant without making a payment themselves on taxes owing.

Winners follow of weekly tournament, Victoria Allstars' Duplicate Bridge Club: Elizabeth Warren and Otto Leemant; Les Stewart and George Morgan; Ethel Cleworth and Jim Duprau; Phil Hagel and Bud Waddington; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Duprau; Lilliane Labutt and Jack Goldie.

A plan to improve the park area on the east side of Beach Drive between Goodwin Street and Orchard Avenue will be considered by this year's estimates committee of Oak Bay council.

Cost would be about $20,000. The plan provides for lawns on the present existing wild grass areas and a black-topped area for close to 60 cars, with shielding trees and shrubs.

The area is adjacent to the Oak Bay boathouse.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady has advised city council there is nothing illegal about salesmen selling prepaid funeral services.

Only a trades licence is required, he said.

He reported on the situation after Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean said tax-paying undertakers were concerned about possibility of "package deal" funerals being offered in Victoria.

The first integrated national survival exercise in B.C. with regular army, militia and civil defence participating will be held Thursday and Friday in Victoria and other major points, throughout the province.

Tests will be conducted of warning centre procedure. It is actually an operation in communications.

The test, named "Co-operation One" will be directed by Brig. J. W. Bishop, B.C. area commander, and Major Vincent Lilley, general staff officer at Vancouver headquarters.

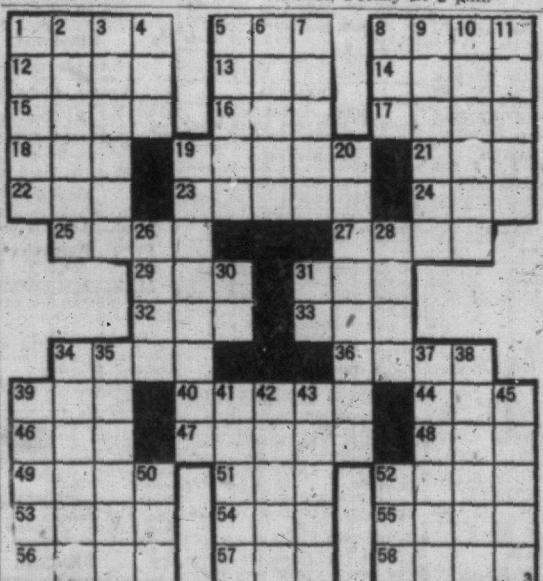

Two Victoria men were remanded to next week for plea on narcotics charges faced in city police court Tuesday.

Counsel W. Berkeley Montell appeared for the Crown, appointed since Gary Conway and Barry Thomas Rushworth first were charged last week.

Alan Bigelow, for Conway, asked for a remand to Monday, and George Gregory, appearing for Rushworth, asked for Tuesday.

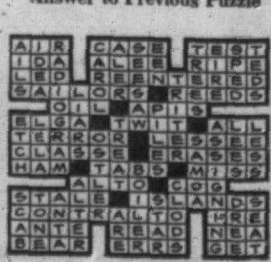

The accused are charged with having heroin in their possession.

Reports on the activities of 1960 and election of officers will make up the business at a meeting of the Canadian National Railways Veterans' Association in the Knights of Pythias' Hall, Cormorant Street, Friday at 2 p.m.

KENNEDY STORY STARTS THURSDAY

On January 20 the United States will inaugurate its new president, John F. Kennedy. Because of the U.S. position as leader of the free world, what he says and does is vitally important to Canadians.

What manner of man is he? What is his background? Beginning Thursday the Times will endeavor to give answers to these questions with a serialized biography of Kennedy.

It is written by a famous U.S. writer, Joe McCarthy, and gives the human as well as the political side of the new president.

U.S.-Backed Laos Gov't Sweeps Vote

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The National Assembly today installed by a unanimous vote of 41 to 0 the American-backed government of Premier Prince Boun Oum.

The crucial vote of confidence came as Boun's forces battled leftists for key points in the strategic, tiny southeast Asian kingdom.

Right-wing pro-American Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, one of two speakers during the hour-long meeting of the assembly, said the Boun government would try to solve the present crisis in the country by its own means as soon as possible.

Phoumi said the government would ask for outside help only if an alleged invasion from Communist North Viet Nam continued. The appeal would be made to the United Nations or "other" organizations. He did not specify whether the "others" might include the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization.

Phoumi said the government wants good relations with all countries, but made it clear Russia, Communist China and North Viet Nam will have to change their attitude toward Laos before good relations can be established with them. The vote was called in an extraordinary session amid charges that the Soviet Union was aiding the leftist forces in the civil war.

Boun, who has ruled Laos by royal decree since Dec. 12, told parliament Tuesday his regime would fight to the end—with the help of friendly countries if needed—against all forms of aggression, "including subversion."

Meanwhile, rightist army leaders claimed they were mounting an offensive from the strategic central Laotian town of Xieng Khouang against a leftist-held airfield on the nearby Plain of Jars.

The Communist New China news agency, however, denied the rightists were in control of Xieng Khouang. Leftist forces "annihilated" a company of rightist paratroopers landing near the town Sunday, the news agency said.

Leftist Push Reported by Soviet

Soviet news agency Tass said today the pro-Western forces are falling back on their headquarters at Savannakhet before a leftist push.

"Hundreds of rebels (rightists) were killed, wounded or taken prisoner during the battles," the report said. "The government troops seized much booty, including artillery pieces, motor vehicles and even planes."

Independent military observers said the Boun government has failed to produce any evidence backing up its claim of Communist Chinese troops being in action in northern Phongsaly province or of an invasion by 3,000 Communist North Vietnamese army regulars fighting beside the Laotian leftists in Xieng Khouang province.

In Bangkok, Thailand, meanwhile, the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization said proof of a Communist ground force invasion of Laos is needed before the alliance could take action in Laos.

SEATO Secretary-General Pote Sarasin said, however, there is no question that Russian planes based in Communist North Viet Nam have been dropping supplies to the leftists.

Sarasin said SEATO is determined to find a solution to the Laotian problem by peaceful means. But, at the same time, it was ready to fulfill its obligations under the Manila Pact which pledges to defend Laos from aggression.

The alliance's decision to seek a political solution in Laos was seen as a concession

Laos Commission To Be Revived?

LONDON (Reuters)—Agreement by Britain and the United States on the need to seek a political solution to the war in Laos was disclosed Tuesday amid signs the conflict might be referred to an international body.

An authoritative source said the American-backed government in Laos has approved conditionally the reconvening of the truce supervisory commission for Laos, of which Canada is a member.

A spokesman said Britain is seeking clarification of a Laotian reply to a British request for a reconvening of the commission.

The reply from right-wing Premier Prince Boun Oum is reported to set down the terms under which he would agree to a revival of the commission, indefinitely adjourned during the summer of 1958.

The spokesman, however, would only say that the reply "does not turn down a proposal for reconvening the commission."

Boun's terms are reported to include demands of a guarantee that the commission would deal with him, and not with his neutralist predecessor, Prince Souvanna Phouma, now believed to be in exile in Cambodia.

The truce supervisory commission, composed of representatives of India, China, Canada and Poland, was set up by the 1954 Geneva conference that ended the nine-year war in Indo-China.

CANADA AWAITS DETAILS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has received no request from the Laotian government for the resumption of the supervisory truce commission, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today.

But he indicated that Canada has been in touch with various countries who attended the Geneva conference which led to Canada, Poland and India being named to the commission.

Canada's stand has been that the commission should become active again only at the request of the government of Laos.

Meanwhile, informed sources here said Canada is awaiting details of conditions under which the government of Laos would accept the commission.

UN Cuba Debate Disrupted By Shouts of Castro Foes

Canada Stays On Fence

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated today that Canada will not act independently of its NATO allies in any change of relations with the United States over Cuba.

"We're still in the position of all other nations in NATO," he said. "Their relations with Cuba have been the same as ours."

"If changes become necessary in the relationship of our countries," he added, "the changes will be made."

Diefenbaker did not elaborate on the relationship between NATO and the United States toward Cuba.

There was speculation the United States would try to get Canada to alter its attitude toward Cuba. Canada's position has been that it will continue normal diplomatic and trading relations with Castro's regime.

U.S. STANDS FIRM ON NAVAL BASE

'We Won't Quit Guantánamo'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House served notice today that the United States will continue to use the Guantánamo naval base despite the break in diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The White House position was made public in a two-sentence statement read by presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty.

"The termination of our diplomatic and consular relations with Cuba has no effect on the status of our naval station at Guantánamo," his statement said.

"The treaty relations under which we maintain the naval station may not be abrogated without the consent of the United States."

There are 10,000 U.S. sailors, marines, civilian workers and dependents at the big base.

Hagerty reported that President Eisenhower had received continuing reports from the state department and the U.S. embassy in Havana on the Cuban situation since Tuesday night's White House announcement of the break in diplomatic relations.

Other developments in the Cuban situation:

The United States began evacuating its embassy personnel from Havana. The state department also urged the estimated 2,000 to 3,000 private American citizens in Cuba to leave the country and renewed its warning to Americans not to go there.

The senate foreign relations committee, scheduled a closed door meeting Friday with secretary of state Christian Herter and other state department officials on Cuban developments. Committee sources expected Democrats to ask why the outgoing Eisenhower administration did not defer a decision on breaking relations until after the Kennedy administration takes office Jan. 20.

Nuclear Explosion Kills 3; Deadly Radiation Feared

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP)—

A new-style nuclear reactor blew up Tuesday night, killed three men and touched off a high level of deadly radiation in a building at one of the major U.S. atomic testing stations.

The Atomic Energy Commission quickly sealed off the area and said there was no danger to other parts of the station or Idaho Falls, a city of 34,000 persons 40 miles away.

But the building itself was so "radioactively hot" that only one of the three bodies could be recovered in the first nine hours after the blast.

A team of radiological experts, wearing baggy white suits with heavy protective shoes, gloves and masks, shuttled in and out of the building to inspect damage and test the radiation.

FIRST FATAL ACCIDENT

They went in one at a time and could stay only minutes. The AEC said it would send airplanes aloft to check the level and direction of radiation. A southwest wind, however, was blowing at the time and would take any radiation over barren wastelands away from populated areas.

The three victims, identified only as military personnel, were trainees learning to operate the reactor, a prototype of a small nuclear reactor being developed for use by the army in remote areas.

The accident happened at 9:30 p.m. when the three men killed were alone in the building.

At least 60 are on duty there in the daytime.

It was the first fatal accident in the 11 years of operation at the National Reactor Training Station, a major AEC installation.

About 4,500 permanent employees work at the station west of here and the AEC said it planned no changes in their schedules today.

U.S. 'Forced' To Sever Ties

(Times News Services)

UNITED NATIONS—Hecklers in the public gallery disrupted a meeting of the United Nations Security Council today when the Cuban foreign minister charged the United States planned to invade his country.

The outburst in the gallery forced the Security Council to recess for eight minutes while guards restored order by ejecting anti-Castro demonstrators.

A few minutes earlier Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa was pelted by frozen snowballs thrown by pickets near the entrance to the UN Building.

In bringing Cuba's charge of an invasion plot before the Security Council, Roa rejected any attempt to reach an understanding with President Eisenhower's administration, which he called "imperialist and reactionary."

'NOT ALONE'

Without mentioning Russia, Roa warned that the government of Fidel Castro "does not stand alone."

"We shall fight, and not alone," he said.

"If an atomic conflagration results, responsibility will fall squarely on the imperialist government of President Eisenhower."

The United States accused Prime Minister Fidel Castro of deliberately forcing Tuesday night's break in U.S.-Cuban relations by a strategy of harassment. It also rejected as ridiculous and hysterical Cuban charges that a U.S. invasion of Cuba is imminent.

Roa told the 11-nation council he had proof of the alleged invasion plans and said in a letter that "the government and people of Cuba are preparing to repel the invaders."

Roa said Cuba had ordered a reduction in the personnel of the U.S. Embassy because "most of the staff is involved in criminal espionage, subversion and terrorist activities." It was this order that led to the U.S. decision to break relations.

SUBVERSION CHARGED

U.S. Ambassador James Wadsworth accused the Castro regime of carrying on Soviet-supported subversion throughout the Western Hemisphere.

The demonstration broke out during Roa's speech.

UN guards quickly moved in on the demonstrators as they shouted insults at the Cuban foreign minister. After a second outburst of shouting, council president Omar Loutfi of the United Arab Republic ordered a recess.

When the meeting was resumed after 10 minutes, the president warned that the chamber would be cleared if there were further outbreaks.

Eight of the demonstrators were ejected by UN guards. They said they were members of the Cuban Revolutionary Front, a Cuban exile group opposed to Premier Fidel Castro.

They were yelling in Spanish such words as "murderer," "liar" and "Communist."

Wadsworth told the Security Council the United States had worked hard to prevent "the leaders of Cuba from choking off our friendly relations but that is what they seemed determined to do."

"Over nearly two years," Wadsworth said, "they have piled insult upon injury to a point where our diplomacy could not function any more."

'Campaign Of Hate'

HAVANA (UPI)—The Castro-controlled Cuban press and radio launched an all-out hate campaign against the United States today, denouncing the break in relations as a "consummation of Yankee diplomatic aggression."

DEMONSTRATORS GREET DAG IN LEOPOLDVILLE

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld arrived in The Congo today to be greeted by demonstrators demanding the immediate release of deposed and jailed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Two platoons of stony-faced Malayan troops of the UN force with bayoneted rifles at the ready surrounded Hammarskjöld's helicopter when it landed at UN headquarters bringing him from the airport.

Hammarskjöld ignored the demonstrators.

'DIRTY INTRIGUES' SAYS SOVIET

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia called today on the United Nations Security Council to "condemn the acts of international piracy by the United States against Cuba."

The official Tass statement was issued as the council convened in New York to consider a Havana complaint.

The Soviet statement claimed that "imperialist circles in the United States are clearly making use of the last weeks of the Republican government to implement their dirty intrigues against Cuba."

WHY? OTTAWA ASKS B.C.

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The federal government will ask an explanation from B.C. of the province's decision to order a comparative investigation of the Columbia and Peace River power developments.

Federal informants said the explanation will be sought during the current B.C.-Ottawa meetings on the Columbia River, scheduled to wind up today.

Ottawa is baffled at Premier Bennett's decision to refer both projects to the B.C. Energy Board for an investigation of the costs, benefits, and a possible tie-in of the two development schemes.

"How can we negotiate in good faith with the U.S. when B.C. apparently isn't decided if it is in favor of the Columbia?" asked one federal spokesman.

OFF THE HOOK?

B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner has been quoted as saying the B.C. Energy Board study "is probably the most important ever initiated in this province."

Ottawa wants to know why B.C. hasn't made up its mind between the two developments, and, if it has, why it is bothering to call an investigation at this late date. Some believe Premier Bennett is using the investigation to get himself off the hook on the Peace River.

Federal and provincial negotiators after a day and a half have not yet reached the subject of a controlling entity for the Columbia development. They are still grappling with details of the draft treaty being prepared by the U.S. and Canada. Thursday U.S. negotiators will arrive in Ottawa for what could be the final meeting before President Eisenhower sends the treaty to Congress for ratification, an act he is anxious to perform before the Kennedy administration takes over Jan. 20.

With the treaty out of the way, Ottawa and B.C. will have to arrive at an understanding on control over the project.

Financing is not being discussed at the current meeting. That is a matter between Premier Bennett and Finance Minister Fleming.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1961

To Mr. Gaglardi

AS A MAN OF HONOR MR. Gaglardi no doubt will be the first to demand a full investigation of certain extraordinary events in his department of highways.

He has been fined $1,000 for contempt of court, in itself an unprecedented affair requiring much more explanation than it has received in the strictly legal proceedings of the courts.

While the charge of contempt was being adjudicated a contractor, Mr. C. W. Thornton, who was convicted along with Mr. Gaglardi and jailed for a time, testified under oath that he had received a road contract of $757,000 when he had no assets, and had not posted a performance bond.

From all this arises the legal question of Mr. Gaglardi's right to sit as a member of the Legislature after his conviction for contempt. It is a nice point of law, on which no opinion is offered here. As the first law officer of the Crown Mr. Bonner is bound to consider it and, if he is in doubt, to refer it to the courts.

But much more than legal technicalities is involved in these complex matters. What is really happening in the department of highways?

Mr. Gaglardi says he has a full answer to all criticism leveled against him. If so, he should be given every opportunity to make the answer before an impartial tribunal where all relevant evidence can be heard under oath.

He should welcome, and we hope he will insist on, a royal commission preferably, as urged by Mr. Perrault, or, in default of a commission, then as a second best choice, a committee of the Legislature. Mr. Gaglardi should vindicate his high office if he is to retain it.

Promises and Realities

MR. KENNEDY WILL GO INTO office with two sets of commitments to the public. Neither of them is likely to be more than partially carried out.

The party platform, as laid down and approved by the national Democratic convention, set forth certain aims and objects of the party. It can be considered as only a very generalized expression of position, however. It cannot be binding on Mr. Kennedy nor will anyone expect it to be so.

As President he will have few limitations on his power; he must be free to make or break policy as occasion demands, and party decisions reached before he was even nominated cannot be allowed to hamper him. His only curbs in this regard must be Congress and public opinion.

The second set of commitments is a little more personal. They are the promises Mr. Kennedy made in various fields during his election campaign. These policies and courses of action may be more reasonably held up to him as undertakings which he must fulfill. But here again there are many other factors involved.

No party which comes to power after a lengthy rule by a different party, finds itself able immediately to implement policies which diverge markedly from those in force. The country's internal economy and its relations with other countries have settled into certain patterns. Only over a long period of time can marked changes be effected in these patterns, unless the life of the nation is to be seriously disrupted.

A classic example of this was the pledge of the Conservative Party in Britain to denationalize industry if it replaced the Labor Government in office. But once elected, it proved too difficult to implement the election promise except in minor aspects.

Mr. Kennedy will therefore probably go slow on major changes, and seek to establish his authority with a series of unspectacular legislative acts which will not arouse any determined opposition. The smallness of his majority in the voting last November is another factor that should deter him from immediate extremes of policy. The changes will be cautious and gradual.

The rule does not always hold. In the 'thirties Mr. Roosevelt promised, and was able immediately to implement, drastic changes in the United States economy. But those were times of urgent crisis. Today the crises are more of a long-lasting nature — although perhaps more lethal in their basic significance — and must be solved by long-term planning. It is for this that Mr. Kennedy must demand, and be given, as much freedom from commitments as possible.

Air Safety Lagging?

OPEN HEARINGS OF THE Civil Aeronautics Board, starting in New York today, may provide further information on the mid-air crash which claimed a record number of lives over that city last month.

The importance of the hearings, however, will not rest solely on the facts coming to light in them. More significant will be the actions which those facts set in motion to increase air safety.

Several points have already emerged from various studies of the mishap. It seems clear that safety planners have not been able to keep pace with the rapid increase in traffic into and out of some airports or to meet all the challenges presented by new jet aircraft.

Dangers such as those which combined to cause the tragedy last month will probably never be eliminated entirely. Human faults and mechanical failings will prevent perfection. At the same time there appear to be new devices in prospect which could minimize the hazards.

One of them is three-dimensional radar which would give control station observers not only the course an aircraft is flying, but also its altitude.

Fine Traffic Record

BY GOOD MANAGEMENT AND good luck Greater Victoria escaped not only traffic fatalities but serious injuries in car crashes over the holiday season.

The record is highly satisfactory, not only in comparison with the national total but also because driving conditions were hazardous during intermittent periods of frost, fog and rain.

Throughout Canada the picture was less inspiring. Thirty-three people were killed in car accidents over the three-day New Year weekend, one more than the total forecast by safety officials and well above the 1959-60 figure of 21. During the three-day Christmas period the national highway death toll was 49, three below the estimate.

In this community drivers and pedestrians appear to have proved, by their caution during the last 10 days, that most accidents do not have to happen. When adequate care is taken, the toll drops—a point to be remembered during the rest of the year.

"I know it's a lovely morning, Harold... but one can't potter about the garden in one's pyjamas... even if they ARE your warm ones..."

FROM OTTAWA

What Will Kennedy's Foreign Policy Be?

By MAX FREEDMAN

THE principles which will guide the Kennedy Administration in its foreign policy are fourfold. To begin with, the new officials believe that Moscow must be as concerned as Washington with the runaway arms race. The possible spread of atomic weapons among young nations and in dangerous areas of the world must cause concern to the Great Powers. It may even expedite a genuine search for an agreement on disarmament. The Kennedy Administration intends to find out what Russia's intentions in this matter really are.

Freedman

Secondly, it plans to place the problem of China in a new framework. It believes that no solution of the problem of recognition can reasonably be expected now. China will never yield its claim to Formosa, the United States will remain firm in its pledge to Formosa, there can be no "two-Chinas" policy unless Formosa and China agree to it, and on this rock the attempted solution must founder.

But recognition does not exhaust the problem. The Kennedy Administration expects China to behave in the old, imperialist tradition in the next few years and to seek new conquests in Asia. When China invaded Tibet it was hard to secure the support of Formosa at the United Nations in condemning this act, for the acquisition of Tibet had been a policy, whether Communist or Nationalist.

This revival of Chinese imperial policy, according to Mr. Kennedy's advisers, will be strengthened by the conviction of Peking that it can make better use of the resources of near-by countries than can their backward Governments and medieval economies.

These advisers are comparing China to Nazi Germany in three ways: China is strong, has weak neighbors, and is short of important resources.

In China today there are less than two acres of land for every rural family. There is a shortage of oil, with between 60 and 80 per cent being imported from Russia. The combination of power with economic need is the classic prelude to aggression; and that is why Mr. Kennedy's advisers are thinking ominously about China's next moves and urging him to co-ordinate American policy with the principal allies.

The third principle is that American policy must pay much more attention to the wishes and prejudices of the new members of the United Nations. These countries will soon master the art of debate and negotiation in the world organization. With the passage of years they will send their best men to the United Nations. Not only their votes but their ideas will be important to the United States. This point must be made very clear to them. There must be no attempt to treat them as if they are heretics if they fall in all particulars to conform to the American dogmas on world affairs.

Finally, the United States must apply its policies with a more sensitive awareness that a world opinion is in fact being created for the first time in history. The existence of this world opinion has been the decisive factor in compelling a suspension of tests that contaminated the atmosphere and increased the dangers of strontium 90. It may now exert an equal influence in compelling attention to the economic needs of the underdeveloped nations.

Mr. Kennedy is being advised that it will be unrealistic for him to base American policy on the assumption that the Chinese danger will make Russia's own conduct more moderate and conciliatory.

On the contrary, Russia will wish to build up its own power and broaden its base of Communist authority so that it will be better able to withstand the Chinese challenge ten years from now. —By Special Arrangement with The Guardian.

ing proportions. In that year the trucks carried $381 millions of traffic.

This aspect of the problem is: how can the railways pay higher wages and still compete with the trucks? This question seems never to have occurred to the railway unions.

No Solution

As the debates on Bill C45 a few weeks ago showed, the Government has no idea of how this problem may be solved. The Government is relying on the MacPherson royal commission on transportation which is expected to report March 31.

Why did the Conservatives, under Mr. Diefenbaker, condemn horizontal increases, when they had no solution? And having obtained power, why did the Conservative government do nothing — for two long years — until the railways came crashing down about their ears?

Even in November, 1958, when the first crisis occurred, why did the Conservative Government take six months to appoint a royal commission to do what the Government, in these circumstances, should have done the moment it took office, in June, 1957?

It is not generally realized that at the present level of freight rates the trucks took so much traffic away from the railways in 1959 that 15,000 railway workers lost their jobs.

FROM WASHINGTON

The Railway Crisis Postponed, Not Solved

By GRANT DEXTER

THE railway crisis has been postponed, by act of Parliament, until May 15. But the fundamental issue which gave rise to the crisis, and which has been in full view since the change of government in June, 1957, remains.

As will be shown, it is rapidly worsening.

There are two aspects to this basic railway problem.

1. This crisis revealed, very clearly, a breakdown in government at Ottawa. The problem caused by railway union wage increases was obvious before the election of 1957, which brought in the Diefenbaker government. It became critical in June, 1957, because the Conservative party, especially Mr. Diefenbaker, was pledged to stop, and did stop, horizontal increases in freight rates.

How could railway wages continue to rise, if the railways were to be forbidden to increase maximum rates — the only category of rates that could be increased without catastrophic loss of traffic to competitors?

As the months and years passed, it became clear that the Diefenbaker government did not know the answer. If the railway unions had waited until the Diefenbaker Government recovered its capacity to govern — to act — today's problem might not be so acute. But they went straight ahead with their drive for higher wages.

The public is concerned about the 14 cents an hour increase which caused the near strike of Dec. 3. The public should remember that this wage award and part of the 17 per cent freight rate increase of Nov. 17, 1958, have still to be absorbed.

More than half of it — 9 per cent — is being paid on an interim basis by government subsidy.

Stacked Up

An application for another 12 per cent horizontal increase, dating from May, 1959, is held up pending a clearing away of the 17 per cent increase of 1958.

Because of government irresolution and inaction, freight rates are in an unprecedented condition of chaos.

The second aspect of the problem arises because of the steady inroads being made by the trucks into railway traffic. Traffic continues to forsake the rails for trucks. And the traffic being lost is the very traffic which bears the rates which have been increased horizontally, on eight occasions since 1946.

Truck competition began in the early 1920s and by 1957 had reached astonishing proportions.

Obsolete?

Financial Post

FOUR young men whose lives were full of promise killed themselves recently in two RCAF jet fighters.

They crashed together in the darkness. The exercise in which they were engaged required them to fly a deliberate collision course, guided by radar, and veer apart at the last split second before impact.

There will be an investigation and the tragedy presumably will be charged to either pilot error or electronic malfunction. It does not really matter, for this was an exercise in futility. One of the aircraft was playing the role of a Russian bomber, and the other was practising its job as a Canadian interceptor.

Yet if there is one thing that becomes daily more certain, it is that any attack on North America will not come from manned bombers.

This is the missile age. If Canada is going to invest in defence, it should be against the weapons that will attack us, not those that might have attacked us last year.

We are spending this year nearly $1,600 million on the kind of "defence" that will not protect us. There are things we could do with that much money, meaningful things that would help restore confidence in the West among people still uncommitted in the power struggle.

We could invest the lives of young Canadians better, too, than to have them die practising an antiquated exercise, in obsolete aircraft, against the kind of attack that will never come.

From Our Files

Jan. 4, 1901 — Eureka, Cal.: Snow to the depth of 72 inches has fallen in the last 24 hours. Buildings collapsed under the tremendous weight and trains have stopped.

Jan. 4, 1921 — London: The annual dinner in honor of General Wolfe took place last night at Westminster, his birthplace, and was attended by many Canadians.

Jan. 4, 1941 — Washington: Sol Bloom, New York Democrat, said the U.S. has the international right under law to supply any type of material to belligerent nations.

As Our Readers See It

Not Socialists

In reference to the strike in Belgium I would like to say that there is no Socialist Party in Belgium. If they were socialists they would not be leading the workers in anything.

The organization masquerading under that label is the Belgium version of the Canadian CCF or British Labor Party. If this so-called "Socialist" party was in power, they like other reform parties, would be doing approximately the same as Eyskens is doing. The "villain" would have a different label, that's all.

The real rogue however, is capitalism, which can be neither administered nor reformed in the interest of the workers. This system with its class struggle violence in many forms, poverty in the midst of potential plenty and fear of war, will encumber the workers until they institute common ownership of the means of production and distribution, in the interest of all society.

Tithing

Since we can't afford in these days of stress to deprive ourselves of any promised blessings, would it not be well for us to take notice of the prominent churchman's advice to his congregation, (Times, Dec. 27, 1960) and begin paying tithes?

Did not Christ Himself strongly indicate that the giving of the tithe (a tenth part) ought to be included with the other Christian practices? (Matt. 23; 23). And the inspired prophet said: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse... and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive." (Malachi 3:10).

AN OBSERVER

Settle Down

As we write January of 1961, we stand on the threshold of another year which can, or should, be marked by much of the influence, for good or otherwise, of what may be the contribution we make towards its movement, up or down.

Already we have commentators prognosticating more industrial difficulties, due to the number of contracts ending and to be reserved, etc.

What necessity is there nowadays to continue with short term contracts, one or two years, which seem to provide the irritation and opportunity for some to assume that any increase is possible.

What this country needs is to really settle down to work and show what we are capable of.

Missing Those DC3s

I have been reading with considerable interest various articles regarding good old DC3s and the air traffic out of Pat Bay airport.

I am all for progress but can't for the life of me see why they are taking the DC3s off the run at this time. Your article in Wednesday's paper states that DC3s have carried 3,200,000 passengers between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle in 16 years without one single mishap. The planes have had some pretty bumpy weather to fly through and have proven themselves most althorwthy and very rugged for such a short hop.

A DC3 makes the trip to Vancouver in 20 minutes, a Viscount in 15 minutes. Viscounts carry about 40 people so if you are at the end of the line, on boarding or landing you won't have much time anyway, so there goes your five minutes. Viscounts are too large and complicated for short runs such as this. So the chance of accident will increase considerably. I would like to suggest that our readers think it over and the people of Victoria get together to demand a good helicopter service which would leave from Victoria and land in Vancouver. A trip of around half an hour.

Using Viscounts is just like putting fancy big Greyhound buses on our city transportation system.

The only reason the fare is going up is to make up for the extra cost of running the larger aircraft.

I would much rather see the good old DC3s plug along for a couple more years until we can come up with a good helicopter service. Remember the CPR with their fancy Princess boats. They lost out to the less comfortable but more efficient government ferries and a much more reasonable price.

What Basis for Hope?

It would seem that Mr. L. J. Pepper has little hope in the prayers of our Queen, and Pope John, and our prime minister, yet he ends his letter with these words: "Let us hope the news of today, and this week will improve." May I ask Mr. Pepper by what power or authority he builds his hope, if it is not on God's love for all mankind?

If we turn our backs on God's love and ignore the good tidings of great joy of the Christmas message, the news is not likely to improve.

Every Sunday evening our churches should be packed with teenagers praising and thanking God for what He has done and will do for us.

Who Removed the Jack?

That was a very nice letter from R. Macneil with reference to the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League. But he quite forgot to tell us who has taken the Union Jack out of our crest and has the Union Jack been taken out of sister legions all over the world? What the new background is I do not know and no person can enlighten me.

KENNEDY STORY
STARTS THURSDAY

On January 20 the United States will inaugurate its new president, John F. Kennedy. Because of the U.S. position as leader of the free world, what he says and does is vitally important to Canadians.

What manner of man is he? What is his background? Beginning Thursday the Times will endeavor to give answers to these questions with a serialized biography of Kennedy.

It is written by a famous U.S. writer, Joe McCarthy, and gives the human as well as the political side of the new president.

U.S.-Backed
Laos Gov't
Sweeps Vote

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The National Assembly today installed by a unanimous vote of 41 to 0 the American-backed government of Premier Prince Boun Oum.

The crucial vote of confidence came as Boun's forces battled leftists for key points in the strategic tiny southeast Asian kingdom.

Right-wing pro-American Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, one of two speakers during the hour-long meeting of the assembly, said the Boun government would try to solve the present crisis in the country by its own means as soon as possible.

Phoumi said the government would ask for outside help only if an alleged invasion from Communist North Viet Nam continued. The appeal would be made to the United Nations or "other" organizations. He did not specify whether the "others" might include the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization.

Phoumi said the government wants good relations with all countries, but made it clear Russia, Communist China and North Viet Nam will have to change their attitude toward Laos before good relations can be established with them.

The vote was called in an extraordinary session amid charges that the Soviet Union was aiding the leftist forces in the civil war.

Boun, who has ruled Laos by royal decree since Dec. 12, told parliament Tuesday his regime would fight to the end—with the help of friendly countries if needed—against all forms of aggression, "including subversion."

Meanwhile, rightist army leaders claimed they were mounting an offensive from the strategic central Laotian town of Xieng Khouang against a leftist-held airfield on the nearby Plain of Jars.

The Communist New China news agency, however, denied the rightists were in control of Xieng Khouang. Leftist forces "annihilated" a company of rightist paratroopers landing near the town Sunday, the news agency said.

In Bangkok, Thailand, meanwhile, the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization said proof of a Communist ground force invasion of Laos is needed before the alliance could take action in Laos.

SEATO Secretary-General Pote Sarasin said, however, there is no question that Russian planes based in Communist North Viet Nam have been dropping supplies to the leftists.

Sarasin said SEATO is determined to find a solution to the Laotian problem by peaceful means. But, at the same time, it was ready to fulfill its obligations under the Manila Pact which pledges to defend Laos from aggression.

The alliance's decision to seek a political solution in Laos was seen as a concession to the leftists in Xieng Khouang province.

WHY?
OTTAWA
ASKS B.C.By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The federal government will ask an explanation from B.C. of the province's decision to order a comparative investigation of the Columbia and Peace River power developments.

Federal informants said the explanation will be sought during the current B.C.-Ottawa meetings on the Columbia River, scheduled to wind up today.

Ottawa is baffled at Premier Bennett's decision to refer both projects to the B.C. Energy Board for an investigation of the costs, benefits, and a possible tie-in of the two development schemes.

"How can we negotiate in good faith with the U.S. when B.C. apparently still hasn't decided it is in favor of the Columbia?" asked one federal spokesman.

OFF THE HOOK?

B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner has been quoted as saying the B.C. Energy Board study "is probably the most important ever initiated in this province."

Ottawa wants to know why B.C. hasn't made up its mind between the two developments, and, if it has, why it is bothering to call an investigation at this late date. Some believe Premier Bennett is using the investigation to get himself off the hook on the Peace River.

Federal and provincial negotiators after a day and a half have not yet reached the subject of a controlling entity for the Columbia development. They are still grappling with details of the draft treaty prepared by the U.S. and Canada. Thursday U.S. negotiators will arrive in Ottawa for what could be the final meeting before President Eisenhower sends the treaty to Congress for ratification, an act he is anxious to perform before the Kennedy administration takes over Jan. 20.

With the treaty out of the way, Ottawa and B.C. will have to arrive at an understanding on control over the project.

Financing is not being discussed at the current meeting. That is a matter between Premier Bennett and Finance Minister Fleming.

CANADA
DETAILS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has received no request from the Laotian government for the resumption of the supervisory truce commission. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today.

But he indicated that Canada has been in touch with various countries who attended the Geneva conference which led to Canada, Poland and India being named to the commission.

Canada's stand has been that the commission should become active again only at the request of the government of Laos.

Meanwhile, informed sources here said Canada is awaiting details of conditions under which the government of Laos would accept the commission.

Far's Laos is concerned, guess there won't be much war talk around here—nobody kin pronounce th' names.

CASTRO

It was this order that led to the U.S. decision to break relations.

SUBVERSION CHARGED

U.S. Ambassador James Wadsworth accused the Castro regime of carrying on Soviet-supported subversion throughout the Western Hemisphere.

The demonstration broke out during Roa's speech. UN guards quickly moved in on the demonstrators as they shouted insults at the Cuban foreign minister. After a second outburst of shouting, council president Omar Loutfi

They were yelling in Spanish such words as "murderer," "liar" and "Communist."

Wadsworth told the Security Council the United States had worked hard to prevent "the leaders of Cuba from choking off our friendly relations but that is what they seemed determined to do."

"Over nearly two years," Wadsworth said, "they have piled insult upon injury to a point where our diplomacy could not function any more."

BACKACHE

May be Warning

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest or that tired-out and heavy-headed feeling may soon follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now.

Snow Hits Maritimes

HALIFAX (CP) — Snow driven by 25-mile-an-hour winds whirled into the Maritimes early today, snarling rush hour traffic and cancelling plane flights.

Campaign Of Hate

HAVANA (UPI) — The Castro-controlled Cuban press and radio launched an all-out hate campaign against the United States today, denouncing the break in relations as a "consummation of Yankee diplomatic aggression."

'DIRTY INTRIGUES' SAYS SOVIET

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia called today on the United Nations Security Council to "condemn the acts of international piracy by the United States against Cuba."

The official Tass statement was issued as the council convened in New York to consider a Havana complaint.

The Soviet statement claimed that "imperialist circles in the United States are clearly making use of the last weeks of the Republican government to implement their dirty intrigues against Cuba."
